Vultures Feasting on Indian Dead

CHAMB, Kashmir Front Line—A black cloud of vultures flapped obscenely in the air, waiting impatiently to feast on the newly dead. Field guns hastily camouflaged in a field of maize thundered a barrage that stunned the ears.

Rome Faces Flood

ROME (UPI)—Three days of heavy rains Friday pushed the Tiber River to about triple its normal level, threatening Rome with a major flood. Pope Paul VI was reported planning an unprecedented visit to flood victims in the city.

The death toll rose to 43, with 27 persons missing, in the storms and flooding that have hit Italy from the Austrian border to Sicily. The muddy, debris-filled Tiber, which passes through the center of Rome, was measured at 43 feet.

RETAINING WALLS
If it rises a few feet it could break through retaining walls and cause a major disaster.

(Torrential end-of-summer rains today flooded parts of London and southern England, disrupted railroad service to the suburbs and caused 10-mile traffic jams on the road to Dover.)

(The Mall, a broad avenue leading to Buckingham Palace at one time was under 18 inches of water. Heavy flooding was reported at Ipswich, 70 miles northeast of London.)

WAVE BUILDS UP
Rome city engineers said "a wave has built up from heavy rains" at Orte, 40 miles upstream from Rome.

"This wave, when it hits Rome, will mark the crest and if the river does not overflow then the danger is past," one official said.

The 17th-century-old Ponte Sant'Angelo, spanning the Tiber, was closed to traffic and authorities were considering shutting down some of the 18 other bridges across the historic river.

Trim, After Losing 40 Pounds

Khrushchev Survives Bout of Pneumonia

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nikita S. Khrushchev has beaten an attack of pneumonia during which he lost 40 pounds but his doctors consider him in "fair" health for a man of 71, informed sources said Friday.

The ousted former Soviet premier has been undergoing a routine medical checkup at a Moscow hospital for the past two weeks and probably will be released within a few days.

Considering his age, the sources said, physicians regard Khrushchev's condition as satisfactory. Friends of the family said the former Kremlin leader's checkup has revealed no serious complaints.

Khrushchev spends his time these days hunting, fishing, hiking and enjoying his grandchildren.

He has been given the go-ahead to continue his quiet life in the country. The former premier has a villa 50 miles west of Moscow.

Politically, Khrushchev is an "unperson" and is criticized from time to time indirectly in the Soviet press. He is understood to keep in touch with world events through a transistor radio he carries around with him.

He sees few visitors and his isolation is largely of his own choosing, sources said.

Hour of Crisis

Shastri Warns Of Air Raids: Hard Days Ahead

NEW DELHI (CP)—Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said in a sombre speech Friday night an "hour of serious crisis" is upon India and it may have to suffer damage from Pakistani air raids.

The prime minister spoke in a countrywide radio broadcast at the end of a tense day in which India claimed its forces shot down two Pakistani jet fighters and advanced in ground fighting in Southwest Kashmir.

INDIA BLAMED
But in Rawalpindi, the new capital of Pakistan, the country's foreign minister, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, blamed India for the latest eruption of the fighting in Kashmir.

Bhutto said Friday that if India wants to stage a war against Pakistan, "it will be unleashing a tragedy of the greatest magnitude—a tragedy which will spell devastation."

COMMONWEALTH
Elsewhere, especially in Commonwealth capitals, desperate efforts were being made to avert a war between the two countries.

Prime Minister Pearson offered his immediate services to bring about a ceasefire. From London, Prime Minister Wilson sent personal messages to both Shastri and President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

PROTEST TO U.S.
India declared Pakistan never would have dared to attack in Kashmir without planes and tanks furnished by the United States. It sent Washington a protest against Pakistan's use of U.S. war material.

Pakistan is a member of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. India has no military aid pact with the U.S.

U.S. Worried!

By ARCH MACKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—The latest fighting between India and Pakistan points up a hazard created when major powers shower arms on smaller ones with trigger tempers.

India formally protested Friday that Pakistan has turned American tanks and Sabre jet fighters against her—contrary to the declaration made in 1954 by then-President Eisenhower.

The U.S. in the last 10 years has given Pakistan some $1,200,000 worth of military aid to be used against any Communist aggression. Britain and Russia have supplied India with assorted military hardware while India has received more than $5,000,000 worth of economic help from the U.S. but little military aid.

Pakistan tanks are superior to the croaking British models in India's arsenal or some Second World War Sherman models purchased from the U.S. Sabre jets are less obsolete than the British Venoms used by India.

What concerns American and other diplomats is the larger-scale operations and the apparent national tensions in each country, compared with the fighting earlier this year over the Rann of Kutch.

Picket Lines Set As Militia Prowls

NATCHEZ, Miss. (UPI)—Civil Rights leaders established picket lines in Negro neighborhoods Friday to enforce an economic "blackout" in this city where armed National Guardsmen patrol the streets to maintain racial peace.

Squads of guardsmen with unsheathed bayonets and helmets drove through the city making reconnaissance maps and noting potential trouble spots and places where snipers could hide.

China Challenges U.S.

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters)—China Friday challenged the United States to send troops—"the more the better"—to fight a war on the Asian mainland and warned it would annihilate them and "even give you receipts."

The challenge, coupled with new attacks on "Khrushchev revisionists" who fear nuclear war, came in a 70,000-word ar-

He said conditions now are more favorable than ever before for waging "peoples war" against the U.S. and he promises increasing Chinese aid for such wars as the country grows stronger.

Lin said the United States "the most rabid aggressor in human history and the most ferocious common enemy of the people of the world."

He said "the U.S. imperialists are now clamoring for another trial of strength with the Chinese people, for another large-scale ground war on the Asian mainland."

He said socialist countries "should regard it as their inalienable duty to support the people's revolutionary struggles in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

The Chinese official said "once again, that the vast people's revolutionary army of several hundred million Chinese people in arms will Latin America."

Bold, Modern University Opens

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—Simon Fraser, Canada's first "trimester" university Tuesday opens its Athenian halls of learning to some 2,000 students.

The University comprises an imposing group of grey-white buildings based on ancient Athens' Acropolis and Peru's

Inca ruins. They sit high atop Burnaby mountain and overlook the blue Pacific.

Simon Fraser is an educational trail-blazer, not just physically and technically, but also academically.

The trimester system is considered a major advantage. The year is divided into three semesters of 16 weeks. They are Spring semester, January to April; Summer semester, May to August; and Fall semester, September to December.

Students may enter at the start of any semester and attend for one, two or three semesters each calendar year.

It was expected many students would choose to follow the traditional pattern and attend two semesters from September to April. Each student is free to determine the number of terms he will attend during any year.

Mediation Bid

Pearson Addles Election

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson threw a curve ball at the nation's election bettors Friday with his offer of personal mediation in the Kashmir dispute.

Opposition critics have branded the offer as proof that Mr. Pearson has in effect "turned chicken" on a fall election.

But the prime minister's executive assistant, Richard O'Hagan told newsmen that the mediation offer and a fall election are not "mutually exclusive" ideas.

Some pundits here interpret the move as a sure sign the election is on. They reason that Mr. Pearson will use his peace proposal as a major campaign gimmick.

They also point out that campaigning from a distance might not hurt Mr. Pearson, who has proved himself weak on the hustings in the last two campaigns.

One thing is certain. The prime minister has heaped confusion on confusion. Canadians face a holiday weekend not knowing where they stand. They will know Tuesday or Wednesday when the prime minister has promised a firm answer one way or another on the election.

Mr. Pearson's offer of personal mediation in the bloody India-Pakistan dispute is without precedent in Canadian history.

Mr. O'Hagan told newsmen the prime minister is willing to travel right to the trouble spot if asked. "He is willing to do whatever is necessary to get a ceasefire," Mr. O'Hagan said.

"In the middle of an election campaign?" a reporter asked. "What a campaign!" Mr. O'Hagan retorted with a smile.

The statement came as a surprise, that Mr. Pearson, who won a Nobel Peace Prize for his peace-keeping solution to the Suez Crisis of 1956, may be bidding to retrieve his slipping international halo to win votes.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker branded the Pearson proposal as "a transparent device to escape the consequences of his ill-considered election threats and rash indulgence in electoral brinkmanship."

"The statement is a complete speculation," said Mr. Pearson, who won a Nobel Peace Prize for his peace-keeping solution to the Suez Crisis of 1956, may be bidding to retrieve his slipping international halo to win votes.

Steel Strike Averted

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson announced Friday night that steel negotiations "have reached essential agreement" on a new contract that would erase the threat of a nationwide strike.

The president, who persuaded industry and union negotiators to move their talks to Washington last Monday and postpone a scheduled strike, did not disclose the basic terms of the settlement but said:

"The settlement is a fair one. It is squarely within the limits set by the national wage-price guidelines which are designed to prevent the inflation which would damage our prosperity. It is also within the guiding spirit of free collective bargaining."

Namu Good Business

SEATTLE (AP)—Namu, the captured killer whale, has proved to be a good business proposition.

Ted and Jan Griffin, operators of the Seattle Marine Aquarium, say the whale has been profitable. "Our entire investment, including operating expenses, has been returned from admissions," adds Jim.

COST $10,000
"Before purchasing the whale, Ted estimated it would take $10,000 out of pocket," Griffin said. "The actual expenses ran considerably higher, but taking into account donations it came to exactly $10,000."

"As soon as we had Namu secured in the towing pen Ted had constructed, I contacted my lawyer and we formed a corporation, Namu, Inc., to license manufacture of Namu items." Trade marks were registered for sweat shirts, toys, hair accessories and other novelties.

"Second thoughts have brought home to him the undesirability of calling an election the result of which he fears," Mr. Diefenbaker said. His former agriculture minister.

ARTILLERY
The battle was at its height when I met with the advancing Pakistanis Friday morning. When it began the Indians had eight battalions of Sikhs and Dogras holding the front, backed by an armored brigade using Patton tanks and a regiment of artillery—say 15,000 men, all with supporting arms.

Friday night they are all broken, in full flight, with the Pakistanis and Kashmiris 20 miles inside the Indian "fortress" and going hell for leather towards the Srinagar road.

BRUTAL RIDE
After a brutal bone-jolting ride—it took me three hours to cover 15 miles—we crossed the "cease-fire line" to the front line.

We passed burned out Indian tanks in flattened maize fields, guns pointing lifelessly to the sky. The vultures were everywhere, wheeling overhead or lined-up in hideous array out.

But just what the U.S. can do at this point to slap Pakistan's wrist is hard to guess.

In more ways than one, this fresh eruption about an old border sore has put pressure on the U.S.

Pakistan's growing friendship with China has worried the U.S. for some time.

President Johnson now is wondering whether he should extend any more aid to Pakistan.

U.S. relations with India have had their ups and downs, mostly during the late President Kennedy made some progress. This was set back earlier this year with the abrupt presidential decision to postpone visits by the Indian and Pakistani leaders.

But India still is a vital element in the U.S. strategy of maintaining a strong Asia as a bulwark against China. Hence the large-scale aid contributions.

What concerns American and other diplomats is the large-scale operations and the apparent national tensions in each country, compared with the fighting earlier this year over the Rann of Kutch.

side each shattered command post and line of the over-run trenches.

I watched a line of Sikh prisoners, one with a shell dressing plastered over his thick black head of hair, another with hands thickly bandaged as they were led to the shade of a banyan tree for questioning.

As the advancing troops poured through lanes cleared in the minefields round each strong-point, so-right on their heels—came pathetic groups of muslim Pakistani villagers who had been driven out in the earliest fighting 17 years ago. I watched them wander about, deafened by the thunder of the field guns, dazed by the clanking roar of the armour, smothered—as we all were—by the billowing clouds of dust which hung over everyone and everything like a vast pall.

GUN SPOTTING

Helicopters roared low overhead, spotting for the gunners, pilots clearly visible in their scarlet baseball caps, waving us on, on, on.

I heard one handsome, remarkably chipper young intelligence officer say: "Hell, we've got too many prisoners—what are we going to do to get them all back to the rear areas?"

FOOTLOGGERS

Time and again, I stopped the troops as they roared through to cross the Tawi river at Chhamb and spoke to them as the lines of pursuing tanks, armed jeeps and humble foot-loggers queued up on the narrow, rutted, one-way-only, dust-smothered road.

I met veterans of the British army campaigns in the Western Desert and Burma — "how's Shepherd's?" joked one officer wearing the ribbon of the MC and bar (he was referring to the famous Shepherd's hotel in wartime Cairo, a cold drinks mecca for the British desert Eighth Army on leave).

BOMB HAPPY

I was under security wraps from divisional headquarters, not to name any officer or man I spoke to, not to identify his unit.

Some of them were bomb happy from two days and nights of non-stop fighting and gunfire. I spoke to one grizzled grey haired warrant officer in the armoured units. The first time we met, he was in a jeep driving aimlessly south. "I am looking for two of my tank crews," he said slowly, carefully, like a drunk. "The tanks were creased up but they're still missing. They are my men—I've got to find them."

OLD SOLDIER

Four hours later, this time aimlessly heading west, he was still looking, still asking: a real old soldier in the best tradition caring only for "his lads."

Rough, gruff, but proper respect was shown to every prisoner I saw taken back through our front lines Friday. "They're soldiers," said one Pakistani major. "And we'll treat them that way. But don't feel sorry for them—they asked for this and they're getting paid back—with credit."

This is a major reverse for India in this highly unofficial war that is still confined to the borders of Kashmir.

Eight battalions in flight, an armoured brigade routed, a whole-division in effect severely mauled.

Either way, official or unofficial war, it is the picture here in South Kashmir Friday night.

Present buildings represent only the first stage of construction. They include the library, theater, academic quadrangle, gymnasium and science complex.

The cost was about $18 million, including furnishings and equipment. Completion is to be staged over five years, at a total cost of $30 million. An eventual student enrolment of about 12,000 is expected.

The "Three Universities Capital Fund," engaged in a campaign to raise $28 million for SFU, the University of B.C. and Victoria University, will allow 42 per cent of the money to the new school. The remainder of the cost was pledged by the provincial government.

Tuesday and Wednesday have been set aside for orientation programs and completion of student registration. Official opening ceremonies are slated for next Thursday.

The university's proposed instruction program combines large lectures for 300 to 400 students with small, intimate, tutorial sessions for groups of 15.

The two methods of instruction are designed to complement each other, and will afford both teacher and student with the advantages of both.

SFU, unlike the larger universities, plans to concentrate on the fundamental arts and sciences and will not attempt to set up a large number of specialties and professional schools as other universities have done.

A first for Canada will be a modification of the "internship program" for education students. Future teachers will receive much practical training right in the schools.

The program of studies toward a degree is less rigid than in many universities, although the standards are essentially the same.

A language, for example, will not be essential for a science student. And the arts student who is uninterested in science won't have to take one to get his degree.

Entrance requirements have also been kept flexible. The standards are the same, but there will be two special categories: A small group of exceptional Grade 11 students will be admitted each year... and adults over 25 who have not completed the entrance requirements will be admitted provided they have proved interest.

Fat Boy Should Cut Down On Treats, Eat Proteins

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: How many calories a day should a growing boy have to lose weight? My son is eight years old, four feet, two inches tall, and weighs 88 pounds. He has gained 23 pounds in one year.—MRS. J.D.

Youngsters of this pre-puberty age quite often pack on some extra weight but not of course to this extent. He is about 25 pounds overweight, and most of it accumulated during the last year.

PROTEIN

If you give him 1,000 to 1,200 calories a day in well-selected foods (plenty of protein, which is lean meat, eggs, cheese, fish, and a good supply of milk to provide calcium for bones—skim milk ought to help give him what he needs yet cut calories—he should lose some pounds. Naturally he needs fruit and vegetables, but if you select low-calorie ones, he can get his vitamins and roughage without piling up calories.

But here's an important point: When a child becomes tubby, he also has an inclination to sit around instead of exercising. This is extremely important. Exercise does more than build muscle. It uses up excess calories which otherwise would turn to fat.

TREATS FATTEN

Naturally, and this is fundamental, watch out for the cookies, candy, pop, cake and other pastries, and so on—the foods that have lots of calories. The "treats," the between-meal snacks, do more than the ordinary meals at the table to make kids fat!

It might be wise to have the boy checked by your doctor, to be sure that no thyroid or other glandular defect is involved. Most likely the answer will be negative, and the real reason will be that he's eating more than he uses up in energy and in building his growing body.

But if you have such a cheek made, you'll have that much more assurance that you are doing the right thing in limiting his calories, and giving him most of them in the foods that will build him strong instead of build him fat.

LIFE SHORTENED

You are wise to be concerned. Get him back into good eating and exercising habits, despite his protests, if he voices any, and you'll have a strong, healthy son. If you let him sit and eat, and eat and sit, you'll condemn him to a life of being too fat, and too hungry. It will also be too short, because overweight definitely shortens lives.

Dear Dr. Molner: My neighbor says toast doesn't have nearly as many calories as plain bread. I say they are the same. Who is right?—J.R.B.

You are right. Toasting doesn't destroy calories (unless you burn the toast.)

Santo Domingo President Pledges Elections

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) — A provisional government was installed in the Dominican Republic Friday night after more than four months of bloody civil war.

The new president, Dr. Hector Garcia-Godoy, said in his installation address that it was up to the people of the war-torn Caribbean republic to make the stay of "foreign interventionists" as brief as possible.

He vowed to establish an impartial government that would inspire confidence and be ready to compete in general elections in nine months' time.

Godoy, 44, said in his speech at the capital city's presidential palace that Dominicans should accept with dignity the economic assistance needed to rehabilitate the country.

Earlier Friday the last opposition to the provisional government disappeared with the resignation of Gen. Francisco Caamaño Dero, president of the "constitutionalist" government.

Toronto Slum

Boy Recuperating After Rat Attack

TORONTO (CP) — A 16-month-old boy, savagely attacked by rats Thursday night in his mid-Toronto home while sleeping in his crib, was reported in good condition Friday in hospital.

Raymond McGillivray's screams brought his parents to his bedside. They found him bleeding from dozens of cuts to his face and one arm.

SCURRIED AWAY

Bernard McGillivray, his father and an unemployed truck driver, said the rats scurried through holes in the floor of his rented home when he and his wife turned on the lights.

"His head was a mass of blood and one hand was badly chewed," said Mr. McGillivray. "If it had been Christopher (four months) the doctor said he would have been dead."

BLIGHTED AREA

The McGillivray home is located in an area on the city's list of blighted regions that will be demolished and redeveloped. Low-rental housing will be constructed.

Mr. McGillivray said the home was the only one he could afford.

JUNK YARD

It rents for $65 a month and is adjacent to a junk yard. He said he will move his wife and five other children to his grandmother's home until he finds other accommodation.

300,000 Murder Counts

Nazi Camp Guards Given Jail Terms

DUESSELDORF, Germany (UPI) — A West German court Friday convicted nine out of 10 former Nazis for their parts in mass murder at Treblinka death camp in wartime Poland.

The packed courtroom was still as presiding judge Rudolf Gottlob read the verdicts sentencing four defendants to life at hard labor and five others to prison terms of varying lengths.

Chief defendant Kurt Franz, 51, blinked behind immense hornrimmed glasses as he listened to the words sentencing him and three colleagues to life behind prison walls. West Germany's maximum penalty, on 300,000 counts of murder.

Also receiving life terms were three former Nazis who helped Franz keep the camp's gas chambers running at full capacity—Willi Mentz, 61, August Wilhelm Metz, 56, and Arthur Maties, 63.

Fellow Treblinka official Otto Stadle, 68, got seven years, and Franz Suchornel, 57, and Gustav Muenzberger, 62, got six years each for complicity in mass killing.

Erwin Lambert, 55, was sent to prison for four years, also for complicity, while the eldest defendant, Franz Rum, a 75-year-old Berlin waiter, drew three years.

ADVANCED AGE

Rum was convicted for murder as well as complicity, but drew a lighter sentence in view of his advanced age.

Male nurse Otto Horn, 61, for whom defence attorneys had asked acquittal along with Rum and Lambert, was set free by the court.

NOT WAR CRIMES

Gottlob, in reading the verdict, reiterated his contention that the 11-month trial "had not the slightest to do with a war crimes trial."

"The physical annihilation of German Jewry is not in the least connected with war, the bombing of cities, or the razing of countryside in wartime," he told the court.

"We are dealing only with the determination of criminal guilt," he said. "This was not a political trial, nor was it our province to make decisions about the moral or political errors of the defendants or even the German people."

Razor-Thin Majority

U.K. Government Faces New Crisis

LONDON (Reuters) — The prospect of a lengthy political crisis looms in Britain with the Labor government facing the possibility that its razor-thin parliamentary majority will be wiped out.

Uncertainty over the timing of a general election continued as Labor, Conservative and Liberal party groups held intensive but separate talks Friday on the situation following the death Thursday of Sir Harry Hylton-Foster, Speaker of the House of Commons.

NO SOUNDINGS

The death of Hylton-Foster places Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government in danger of seeing its over-all majority of two in the House of Commons cut to one, or even eliminated entirely.

No inter-party soundings on the situation are to be held until after Hylton-Foster's funeral Monday.

REPLACEMENT

The future of Britain's third post-war Labor administration now hinges on a replacement for the late Speaker and on the outcome of a by-election in a Labor-held seat.

Sources close to the prime minister insisted Friday there was no reason why the government should be forced into an early election. They expressed confidence that the crisis would be over by the time Parliament returns from its summer recess Oct. 26.

LIKELY CHOICE

The three party leaders may meet after Hylton-Foster's funeral to discuss a replacement for the late Speaker who ran as a non-party candidate in last October's general election.

Dr. Horace King, Labor's senior deputy speaker, is widely expected to become the party's first speaker and Sir Samuel Storey, a Conservative, is likely to move up in his place.

But both Conservative and Liberal party sources made clear they would resist any government pressure on them to fill the third remaining post of junior deputy speaker.

Goldberg Seeks Meeting

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Plans were being made Friday night to call an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council today to deal with the Kashmir dispute between India and Pakistan.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, president of the security council this month, was reported planning to call the council after Secretary-General U Thant held talks with delegates from all 11 nations which make up the council.

Encephalitis Death Confirmed

By the Canadian Press

Dr. J. G. Clarkson, Saskatchewan's deputy minister of health, Friday confirmed the first death on the prairies from western equine encephalitis.

The victim was Mrs. Frances Schmidt, 48, of Unity in western Saskatchewan 105 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

Total suspected cases of various kinds of encephalitis, commonly known as sleeping sickness, now number 154 in Saskatchewan.

Crew and Troops Killed in Copter

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong gunmen shot down a troop-carrying U.S. army helicopter Friday as it flew toward a guerrilla centre previously bombed by B-52s, and a spokesman said all aboard were killed.

The helicopter, capable of carrying a dozen men, burst into flames after plunging to earth on a run toward Ho Bo Woods, 20 miles north-northwest of Saigon. Military authorities withheld the number involved on security grounds, but said the casualties were heavy. The flight was part of a scouting operation.

Swelling U.S. military ranks in South Viet Nam toward the 100,000 mark were about 1,400 men of marine aircraft Group 26, equipped with helicopters and observation planes, they streamed ashore at Chu Lai, a marine beachhead between Da Nang and Quang Ngai.

"We brought all we need to stay and fight," said the group's commander, Col. William Johnson of Tyler, Tex.

A marine patrol clashed with a Viet Cong band six miles west of Chu Lai. A spokesman said the patrol killed one guerrilla and wounded another.

Government troops wound up an overnight sweep against the Viet Cong south of Quang Ngai City, 320 miles northeast of Saigon, with a report they had freed 150 refugees and 38 government soldiers from Viet Cong imprisonment.

They said they killed 25 Viet Cong, captured two and detained seven suspects. U.S. military authorities confirmed 15 of the dead by body count. It had been reported Thursday that the troops captured five Viet Cong and rounded up 47 suspects.

Government operations elsewhere included a militia ambush of a Viet Cong detachment in the Kien An area, which lives on the Gulf of Siam 125 miles southwest of Saigon.

Decisive Decision

FOR SOME TIME it has been the guess of a number of Ottawa newspapermen that Prime Minister Pearson has set November 8 as the date for a federal general election. But because these guessers were journalists working on second-hand information at best not too much credence has been placed in their prophecies.

For his part, Mr. Pearson has attempted to scotch further predictions—some of which might prove to be so near the truth as to hint of some degree of collusion between himself and certain favored members of the Press Gallery—by telling reporters that he has not yet reached a decision on the matter but will by next week when he will make an immediate public announcement.

But despite the prime minister's apparent desire for all election-date speculation to cease, Mr. Hazen Argue, the former CCF member of Parliament who is now the Liberal organizer for Saskatchewan, has taken it upon himself to announce that November 8 is indeed the date set by Mr. Pearson.

This blowing the gaff by a trusted though unelected Liberal henchman is more than likely to upset the prime minister and create considerable ill-feeling among some of his more senior followers and cabinet colleagues all of whom have obviously been sworn to secrecy on the subject.

Even the talkative Miss Judy LaMarsh has resisted the temptation of mentioning the date, going only so far as to report that she and her friends in the cabinet are in favor of an early election. And even at that she was strongly criticized by an eastern publication for breaking her oath of secrecy by revealing that she actually had friends in the cabinet.

It might even be that Mr. Argue's impertinence in jumping the gun will be enough to persuade the Grit hierarchy to change its mind on the selected date—whatever Mr. Pearson's personal desires may be.

It is not too difficult to visualize Mr. Pearson entering the cabinet room next week, exuding his well-known decisiveness and determination, and laying down the law to his glum-faced disjuncted-nosed and hush-mouthed colleagues with these words: "Miss LaMarsh and gentlemen, November 8 is the date. I have made up my mind. And if you don't like it, I can always change it..."

Of Special Nature

THE instance of a local doctor being ticketed and having his car towed away while compelled to leave the vehicle in a prohibited area because of an emergency heart call isn't one that should give city council undue perplexity. The remedy is obvious—special consideration should be given the medical profession in such cases.

Temporary traffic congestion or overparking at a meter are of minor values when set against the matter of life and death, and every emergency to which a doctor attends involves this possibility. Nor should any question of a precedent worry the local authorities.

A doctor doesn't have time to search for an approved parking place when urgency demands his instant attention. He cannot leave a patient, either, in order to move his car because the meter time has run out. And if his car is towed away, and another emergency follows the first, as happened in this particular instance, then he is in a predicament that could prove fatal to the person suddenly struck down by critical illness.

It should be easy enough for the city council or the police commission to issue a special identification card to all local doctors which could be attached to the inside of the windshield and thus be of immediate recognition to prevent the car being moved or the doctor penalized. Doctors will not be worried about the price of a parking ticket but it is the principle that is the root of the matter—they must have freedom to answer quickly the call for their services.

The medical profession is an honorable and responsible one; there need be no fear that the privilege of parking abolition will be abused. Nor are they likely to park in forbidden zones or exceed the time limits without the cause that has invited their professional aid in human distress.

They should be enabled by some special identification to put emergency attention ahead of all else.

Good Protection

ONE of the several advantages of belonging to a fish and game club in B.C. is that membership entitles one to $100,000 worth of liability insurance.

It is possible, according to officials of the fish and game branch of the government, to obtain individual coverage, but the rates are higher than for group insurance.

This being the case it would be reasonable to assume that rates for liability insurance, if applied to the whole group of firearms licensees, would be proportionately lower still.

From time to time the idea of compulsory insurance for every person taking out a firearms licence has been discussed departmentally but apparently has never been recommended to the government. The idea of compulsion is not popular.

Yet almost everyone will admit that this sort of protection, obtainable at small cost, is much to be desired.

Hunting accidents are relatively few, largely because hunters are generally a dependable group, with whom familiarity with firearms does not breed contempt. But hunters are not the only people who possess firearms licences, and accidents, particularly among children, are not infrequent. Firearms, in fact, are 13th on the "cause of accident" list.

Too often the damage done is costly, as well as painful, and the responsible party is faced with crippling damages.

It would seem desirable, then, that the universal acceptance of liability insurance be studied. And while they are at it, the authorities might discuss the feasibility of similar regulations to apply to powerboat operators.

The Cynics in the Saddle

Propaganda Versus Honest Policy

By HOWARD GREEN

Former Secretary of State for External Affairs

ELECTIONS are supposed to give citizens the opportunity to decide the policies that will be followed by their governments when elected.

Unfortunately this is no longer the case in Canada. One reason is an increased cynicism by men in public office. For example a few months ago one of the federal ministers from British Columbia explained that a promise made by the other Liberal minister from this province was not binding because it had been made during an election.

Another is the importation of American election methods. In 1963 one of Mr. Pearson's main campaign workers was brought in from the United States where he had been active in the Kennedy campaign. The technique is essentially one of brain-washing but it worked.

No other Canadian party has tried this high pressure type of campaign and it is to be hoped they continue to use a Canadian approach. However the Liberals will fight the same kind of campaign in the next federal election, and if successful the other parties will probably be compelled to adopt the same American methods.

One line, copied entirely from the Kennedy people, was to accuse the former government of ruining Canada's prestige all over the world. The present federal minister to whom I alluded above even advised people not to admit they were Canadians if they went abroad because our nation was so disliked.

This, of course, was a phony appeal as any Canadian who had travelled abroad at that time knew. It was very significant that Mr. Pearson, upon returning from the United Nations shortly after he became prime minister, remarked that he had found Canada's standing there very high. Yet in the impending election the cry will be that only the Liberals can maintain Canada's good name.

There was another unprincipled approach in the advocacy of nuclear weapons for Canada. On this question Mr. Pearson changed his policy overnight and after conferring in the United States. Eventually he had Canada acquire such weapons, but now the policy is changing back.

In Europe the Starfighter planes which he equipped with nuclear warheads are being gradually replaced by non-nuclear aircraft. About a fortnight ago a spokesman for Defence Minister Paul Hellyer was quoted as saying, "Canada will switch to the more sensible role of attempting to prevent a nuclear war." This was the policy for which the previous government was attacked so bitterly. National unity is to be stressed, too, in the campaign and is now featured as a Liberal policy. Yet unity has been endangered during the last two years by a greater extent than ever before. Never has there been such bitterness in Canada between the races.

Co-operative federalism is another cry. This means giving one province what is in effect the status of an independent state. The government has moved steadily towards this goal and if returned will certainly keep right on to the end. How can this nation possibly grow strong or survive, for that matter—under leadership of this kind?

No mention is made of raising the standard of public life in Canada. Presumably the public relations advisers of the government are convinced that Canadians will ignore the Doron commission report and the sordid facts which brought about the enquiry. The ministers involved remain in the cabinet. So do the ministers who got substantial amounts of furniture without a down payment.

Their exploits have not even been investigated. How can Canada get good government from these men? Presumably the Canadian people are expected to forget these things as well.

Calling an election at this time would be an action of the same type. The government is in no danger of being defeated in the House for invariably enough members of the small parties vote with it to make defeat impossible. Furthermore there is to be an extensive redistribution based on the 1961 census. This will be completed within a few months and an election meanwhile will put off representation on the new basis until at least 1969—just two years before another census. An exception in Greek politics, where the rule is alliance not to a party but to the handwager of the "coming man," Mr. Papandreu was a liberal when he entered politics almost half a century ago and has been a liberal ever since. In and out of power, in and out of jail, in and out of Greece.

His liberalism is of the old type, which maintains that the remedy for all extremism in politics is social justice and a fair share for all of whatever cake the state may have the means of baking. This attitude involves refusing to see communism as a militant revolutionary movement. Recently, after his ouster for "permitting Communist infiltration of the armed forces," he held a press conference: "Under my government, communism ceased to be a danger. Communism is a danger only when the people are oppressed."

As prime minister he repealed the security laws—dating from the post-war Communist civil war and permitting the arrest and exile to distant islands without trial of suspected Communists—and freed the remaining Greek political prisoners, some of whom had been in jail for almost 20 years. By almost eliminating insistence on display of a "certificate of national reliability" (better known as "loyalty certificate") from the police by anyone seeking almost any kind of work, he made it possible for a Greek to get a job, a passport or a driving licence in spite of youthful political indiscretions. "Understanding the defences of the state," his opponents called it.

Less spectacularly, by doubling as prime minister and minister of education, he forced through a long-overdue modernization of the antiquated Greek educational system, and launched an ambitious school and university building program.

In a spirit of "social justice, and to hell with the economics of it," he paid higher guaranteed prices for farm produce than any government before. He increased minimum wages for unskilled workers, with the inevitable result that the wages of skilled workers rose too, and upped the salaries of Greek civil servants.

However, by failing to rationalize the Greek smallholder farming system, and failing to link higher wages in industry with increased productivity, he produced a spiralling increase in the cost of living which, before his ouster clouded all other issues, was beginning to lead to increasing popular discontent.

In the last months before his fall, he was widely held to be moving toward two dramatic measures: to permit the mass repatriation of Greeks who fled the collapse of the Communist behind the Iron Curtain after civil war, and to legalize the Greek Communist Party.

Hence the Kerensky epithet. For Kerensky, too, believed that the ice of Lenin's Bolsheviks would melt in the sunshine of social justice. M. Papandreu likes to point out on every occasion that

Greeks Treading A Dangerous Road

By VICTOR P. WALKER from Athens

A FRIGHTENING comparison is being drawn in Athens these days between the present situation of Greece and that of Russia on the eve of the 1918 revolution against the czar. The argument goes that as the Russian Bolsheviks used Alexander Kerensky to clear the way to power and then pushed him aside, so the Greek Communists are using ousted Premier George Papandreu.

Some of the more extreme Athens newspapers have almost ceased printing the name of Papandreu. They refer to him either as "our-Kerensky" or "the fatal man."

Whether or not the comparison is a valid one, there does seem no doubt that the only gains from the long Greek political crisis will go to the Greek Communist party—a body officially outlawed but represented by a "front" organization, the Union of the Democratic Left (EDA), whose leader, 80-year-old M. John Passalides, once sat in the Russian Duma as a member of Kerensky's party and so knows just how the Bolsheviks worked it there. M. Passalides fled to Greece in 1922, and has been active on the Greek left ever since.

If M. Papandreu wins his battle with the king, the prestige of King Constantine will fall even lower than it has already in the last month, to the profit of Communism.

If King Constantine wins, it will be over the dead body of the already badly mauled Centre Union Party which M. Papandreu founded and led to power. The left wing of the party, with M. Papandreu, will be driven further toward the Communists, and only a will remain between the two extremes.

Then Greece will presumably be in for another period of that political repression in which communism, driven underground, spreads like dry rot through the foundations of the state.

This is the current reading of the situation by responsible Greeks who desire most of all return of political peace at the lowest possible cost.

The "eve of revolution" comparison is founded by those who make it on the character and policies of M. Papandreu. An exception in Greek politics, where the rule is alliance not to a party but to the handwager of the "coming man," M. Papandreu was a liberal when he entered politics almost half a century ago and has been a liberal ever since. In and out of power, in and out of jail, in and out of Greece.

His liberalism is of the old type, which maintains that the remedy for all extremism in politics is social justice and a fair share for all of whatever cake the state may have the means of baking. This attitude involves refusing to see communism as a militant revolutionary movement. Recently, after his ouster for "permitting Communist infiltration of the armed forces," he held a press conference: "Under my government, communism ceased to be a danger. Communism is a danger only when the people are oppressed."

As prime minister he repealed the security laws—dating from the post-war Communist civil war and permitting the arrest and exile to distant islands without trial of suspected Communists—and freed the remaining Greek political prisoners, some of whom had been in jail for almost 20 years. By almost eliminating insistence on display of a "certificate of national reliability" (better known as "loyalty certificate") from the police by anyone seeking almost any kind of work, he made it possible for a Greek to get a job, a passport or a driving licence in spite of youthful political indiscretions. "Understanding the defences of the state," his opponents called it.

Less spectacularly, by doubling as prime minister and minister of education, he forced through a long-overdue modernization of the antiquated Greek educational system, and launched an ambitious school and university building program.

In a spirit of "social justice, and to hell with the economics of it," he paid higher guaranteed prices for farm produce than any government before. He increased minimum wages for unskilled workers, with the inevitable result that the wages of skilled workers rose too, and upped the salaries of Greek civil servants.

However, by failing to rationalize the Greek smallholder farming system, and failing to link higher wages in industry with increased productivity, he produced a spiralling increase in the cost of living which, before his ouster clouded all other issues, was beginning to lead to increasing popular discontent.

In the last months before his fall, he was widely held to be moving toward two dramatic measures: to permit the mass repatriation of Greeks who fled the collapse of the Communist behind the Iron Curtain after civil war, and to legalize the Greek Communist Party.

Hence the Kerensky epithet. For Kerensky, too, believed that the ice of Lenin's Bolsheviks would melt in the sunshine of social justice. M. Papandreu likes to point out on every occasion that

M. Papandreu believes it can be. An open admirer of the British parliamentary system, he maintains that what will work in Britain will work in Greece—despite Greece's common frontiers with the Communist states of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania—and that communism will gradually wither away in a progressive state.

Although he, more than anyone else, thwarted the 1944 Communist bid to seize power in Greece, the Communists are backing him to the hilt in his present clash with the king.

At the same time, communism is exploiting its newly won freedoms of speech and non-violent demonstration.

Every night the mobs march screaming through the streets of Athens, shouting slogans against the monarchy and demanding a plebiscite, while the leftist papers carry vicious articles on King Constantine and, particularly, his mother, Queen Frederika.

The crowds, mainly students and younger workers from the poorer suburbs of Athens and Piraeus, gather to the rallying cry "Papandreu ou!" They demand the reinstatement of Papandreu and democracy. "Which is the dog and which the tail is a matter of much debate in Athens."

Three big questions are being asked: If M. Papandreu should return to power, will he be able to control the forces he has unleashed? (At a recent press conference he expressed confidence that the mobs would cease marching when the king returned to "constitutional order.")

Will he, with the right wing of his party in open revolt against him, be able to resist the pressure to seek more left-wing support by legalizing the Communist party and opening the frontiers to former rebels waiting in Russia for a chance to return?

If he should not return, will it be possible to extinguish the present fires without a larger explosion, and more bloodshed, than the country can afford?

While only extreme rightists see revolution ahead, there is general agreement on the danger of the bloodiest rioting Greece has seen in two decades.

Apart from the "Kerensky" business, there is one other comparison with Greece today and Russia in the early years of the 20th Century—one that weighs heavily on the thoughts of many Greeks.

In Greece today, as in Russia then, the officer corps is intensely loyal to the institution of the monarchy and confident of its ability, if necessary, to put the politicians and the people in their place.

But the conscripts who make up the armed forces are mainly youths from the kind of families that have gained most from "Social Justice's" fling at "M. Papandreu."

Some date the beginning of the concerted move to get rid of M. Papandreu from the discovery in May of sabotage of a number of vehicles of an army unit in the north of Greece.

Anything which casts a shadow of doubt on the unwavering loyalty of Greek soldiers to their officers rocks the foundation of the Greek regime.

Whether or not the sabotage was the work of "agents provocateurs" or a few soldiers with a grudge against a tough commanding officer, as has been claimed by leftists, it certainly put the skids under M. Papandreu. It is believed by many to lie at the bottom of the king's rooklike determination not to have him back, cost what it may.

I was sent there to take her place.

The caretaker, Mr. Guy Pears, who also had been there many years, luckily for me stayed on for some time before he retired.

There was no electricity nor telephone there till 1947. Whilst I was there the old Chinese man and a Japanese wife to become Christians. The Chinese clergyman had visited Charlie more than once. He came to the island and baptized Charlie. A little time later the Rev. Mr. Bolton, who also visited the island, baptized the Japanese, Mike.

The really most interesting thing was when the "sulfa" treatment was used. We could watch its effects on all patients. The woman patient had been discharged before I was there. She came back and was very unhappy naturally. The new sulfa treatment cured her. Both she and Mike were discharged as cured before I left. Charlie was also cured but as he had nowhere to go he stayed happily on the island till he died.

Permanent live theatre in Victoria will never succeed as long as critics with insufficient qualifications continue to sway the public according to their personal views and prejudices. The fact that two critics can present completely opposing views of the same presentation would suggest that one or both are unqualified. It is difficult to "pan" a friend or to lavish him with public praise. This can only be circumvented by a completely impartial and accredited reviewer, i.e. one who has studied every facet of theatre in a recognized school.

Admiring, striving to improve their parts, are left bewildered by vague criticisms. A competent critic, offering constructive criticism should be able to give a lucid description of his objections and suggest how to overcome them.

Inaccurate statements, showing a lack of research of styles and customs indicate a failure on the part of the critics to live up to their responsibilities as critics. How can the genuine

Pearson Addles Election

Ister, Alvin Hamilton, issued a statement beginning "now that it is clear there will be general election this fall . . ."

Mr. Hamilton said Mr. Pearson has decided to make several Senate appointments, shuffle his cabinet, then call a few by-elections in strong Liberal areas.

"This mediation announcement is strictly a rationalization to get him out of a hole," Mr. Hamilton said.

He announced he would place on the order paper proposals to establish a national securities commission, a comprehensive water policy and a comprehensive program for eastern agriculture.

The Pearson proposal was contained in a statement issued just before noon Friday which said External Affairs Minister Paul Martin had made the offer to India and Pakistan Thursday through their commissioners here.

Mr. Martin told the commissioners that if Canadian assistance was acceptable, to both Mr. Pearson was prepared to offer "immediate services to bring about a ceasefire in Kashmir and for such other purposes as the two governments might agree would be helpful in improving their relations in this situation."

The statement said United Nations Secretary General U Thant had been informed of the offer. An aide to Mr. Martin said at the briefing the government "has every reason to believe the proposal will be acceptable to the secretary general."

He said the governments of India and Pakistan had not been consulted about the offer before it was made.

However, he added that Mr. Pearson would not have made it "if he felt it had no chance of success."

In the past Canada has offered to help settle India-Pakistan differences, but only when invited to do so.

Asked why Mr. Pearson had taken the initiative this time, the aide replied: "The gravity of the situation caused the change (in policy)."

"The escalation in the war has already taken place . . . that is precisely what causes such grave concern."

He said the situation in Kashmir has deteriorated badly in the past two weeks.

So far there has been no response from either India or Pakistan to the Pearson proposal. But Mr. Martin's aide said:

"We have every reason to believe that this will be welcomed." He said he could not recall any precedent for such a move by a Canadian prime minister.

Asked why Mr. Pearson and not External Affairs Minister Martin or some UN official should take up the challenge, the aide said:

"It was felt the stature of the prime minister and his achievement in the past in delicate and complex assignments would give him some special ability to discharge a mission of this sort."

Hard Days Ahead

"The country has to prepare itself for hard days ahead," he said. "We may have to suffer damage from air raids."

Shortly before Shastri spoke, an official Indian spokesman charged Pakistani pilots bombed and strafed a mosque in South-west Kashmir and killed 25 to 40 civilians. He said 40 other persons were severely injured.

CASUALTIES SECRET

Neither side issued any battle casualty reports from South-west Kashmir but an Indian spokesman claimed that in anti-guerrilla operations elsewhere in the state, Indians have killed 599 "Pakistan infiltrators" and confirmed this by body count. It was estimated 65 others had been killed and 111 captured. Indian losses were put at 178 soldiers killed, along with 31 policemen.

RISE IN REVOLT

The Pakistani foreign minister said the people of Kashmir have "risen in revolt" as "over the years, India has closed one door after another in its determination to deny them the right of self-determination."

He alleged "New Delhi proceeded with measure after measure for immoral and illegal integration of the state in flagrant violation of its international commitments" to hold a free vote to settle the state's future accession to either India or Pakistan.

An official spokesman in Rawalpindi claimed two air force officers were flying over the Chamb area in a helicopter when they saw troops moving them to land. On touching down, they found they had landed at an Indian post.

Undismayed, the senior pilot told the Indians they were surrounded and he had been asked to demand their surrender.

The spokesman said the Indians then surrendered and were marched off by one of the officers, while the other flew off in the helicopter to arrange a Pakistani reception party.

Both sides seemed to acknowledge that the fighting had stabilized in the Chamb area of Indian-held Kashmir northwest of Jammu, the winter capital of India's portion of the disputed Himalayan state.

An Indian spokesman asserted that counter-attacks had halted the drive of Pakistani tanks and troops five to six miles inside Indian territory on the Chamb front.

Union Awaits Ballot Count

VANCOUVER (CP)—A union official said a decision on whether a strike vote by oil refinery workers will affect the industry on a provincial or national basis will be made after ballots are counted.

He said 2,500 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union (OCA) at major refineries in western provinces but Quebec cast ballots this week.

RFC Reunion

Victoria Pilot Rejoins Old Comrades

COLERNE, England (CP) — Major R. H. B. Ker, Victoria businessman, Friday night attended the 50th anniversary dinner of No. 24 Squadron, the first single-seat fighter unit of the Royal Flying Corps. The dinner was held at this Wiltshire airbase.

Major Ker, 70, who arrived in England in the summer of 1915 with the 48th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, was one of the original 12 members of the squadron, formed to counter the German Fokker Corps.

SOMME FIGHT
Flying de Havilland 2 Pusher biplanes, Major Ker remained with the squadron for six months until April, 1916, participating in the first battle of the Somme and facing the great German ace Baron von Richthofen.

Major Ker will also attend a dinner and commemoration service today. He flies home Monday.

TRANSPORT GROUP
No. 24 Squadron was formed at Hounslow, Middlesex, Sept. 1, 1915 and by the end of the war had accounted for 297 enemy aircraft. Since the Second World War it has been a transport squadron, responsible on several occasions for the movement of members of the Royal Family, Sir Winston Churchill and other important persons.

Major L. G. Hawker, who took the squadron to France in February, 1916, and was killed in a duel with von Richthofen, was awarded the first Victoria Cross presented to a member of the Royal Flying Corps, later the RAF.

Young Boy Jailed Indefinitely

TERRACE (CP)—A juvenile court judge Friday ordered a 13-year-old boy jailed indefinitely at Brannen Lake School for setting a fire that took the life of a migratory worker.

The boy was charged with non-capital murder and arson after a July 28 fire that destroyed a lumber shed where the 28-year-old transient was sleeping.

The boy pleaded guilty on the arson charge, and the crown entered a stay of proceedings on the murder charge.

Saanich vs Attorney-General

Court Hassle Gets Airing

A meeting has been set next Wednesday between officials of the attorney-general's department and the municipality of Saanich to thresh out differences over Saanich participation in a central court facility in downtown Victoria.

Judge Rules On Order By Alberta

VANCOUVER (CP)—A city magistrate said Friday he cannot interfere with an Alberta Supreme Court order for the return to Edmonton of two men held here in connection with the theft of $1,200,000 in mutilated money.

Magistrate Gordon Scott said that if the men, Joseph Percival, 37, and James McDougall, 31, are returned to Edmonton as ordered, a bench warrant can be applied for to preserve jurisdiction for charges against the men here.

The two men are scheduled to be arraigned in Alberta Supreme Court Tuesday on charges of possessing $12,000 alleged to have been part of a robbery of mutilated money last February from a railway merchandise depot in Vancouver.

Inn Workers Accept Raise

OCEAN FALLS (CP)—Employees at the Martin Inn operated by Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. have accepted a 15 cents an hour wage increase plus a 15 cents an hour increase for work on Sundays and statutory holidays. The employees at the residence for pulp mill workers had earlier voted to strike.

But he said he does not expect a blowup.

"I have always enjoyed the best of relationships with the attorney-general's office since I became reeve. Although this has been described as a 'row,' I am sure that relationship will continue."

U.K. Planning New Harbor

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain is to have a new $17,700,000 ($53,100,000) harbor at Port Talbot in South Wales. The new port, expected to be working by 1969, is designed primarily to provide new terminal facilities for the import of iron ore for the Welsh Steel Company.

New Blast Planned

LONDON (UPI)—Communist China is preparing two more nuclear test explosions, British reports said Friday, Peking has already tested two nuclear devices.

British reports said Mao Tse-tung told recent visitors to Peking that the new explosions would take place shortly. China is said to be pushing its nuclear program not merely as a matter of prestige but with increasing determination to develop atomic weapons at the earliest possible date.

SECOND BLAST
Peking exploded its first nuclear device last October. Another test followed in mid-May of this year. It was of a considerably advanced nature.

Reports from behind the bamboo curtain a few months ago suggested another nuclear test was in the offing.

PLANS CHANGED
But the plans appear to have been changed in the wake of the stepped up Viet Nam war. Peking apparently feared that the United States was out to bomb its nuclear installations. Since then there have been hints that China was busy shifting its nuclear experimental and scientific centres or, at any rate, spreading them out for security reasons.

NEAR FUTURE
Just when the projected new tests will be carried out is not known but signs are that they are planned for the "very near future."

Goldwater Suing Magazine

NEW YORK (AP)—Barry Goldwater filed in federal court Thursday a $2,000,000 libel suit against Fact Magazine Inc., its editor-publisher and its managing editor.

The former senator's complaint cited the September-October, 1964, edition of the magazine.

The complaint said that on the front cover of that issue was the legend: "1889 psychiatrists say Goldwater is psychologically unfit to be president."

BACK COVER
On the back cover of the same issue, the suit said, it was stated of Goldwater that "he consciously wants to destroy the world with atomic bombs. He is a mass murderer at heart. He is amoral and immoral and a dangerous lunatic."

Inside the magazine, the suit claimed, Ralph Ginzburg, editor and publisher of Fact, stated: "I believe Goldwater has the same pathological makeup as Hitler, Castro, Stalin and other schizophrenic leaders."

MALICE CHARGED
The suit said the statements were written with "actual malice and with knowledge that they were false" to "deprive the plaintiff of his good reputation as a public official and a candidate for office."

Goldwater was the 1964 Republican candidate for U.S. president.

Barbers Say Nothing New In Regulation

Recent announcement that barbers and hairdressers will now be included under Unemployment Insurance Commission regulations was termed "nothing new" by Walter Singer, head of the Victoria Barbers' Union.

"We have been paying unemployment insurance for years," said Mr. Singer.

"Some years ago, another barber and I were laid off and collected unemployment insurance for four months before we were able to find other jobs," he added.

Labor Minister MacEachen made the announcement from Ottawa Thursday. The regulation, which was passed by the Unemployment Insurance Commission, includes all those employed in barbering and hairdressing establishments.

The regulation also includes people who provide manicure, massage and shoeshine services, but does not include the proprietor or operator.

Naden Band Keeps Busy

A busy schedule is being mapped out for HMCS Naden Band with a concert tour in Calgary and Edmonton during the last two weeks in September.

Under the baton of Lieut. Tudor Jones, the 44-piece band will put on 13 concerts in schools in Calgary, then swing into Edmonton for 15 more concerts.

Idea behind the tour is to let students know there is a navy band and what it can do.

The band returns Oct. 4.

Latest intelligence reports suggested that China's push for nuclear status may in effect considerably shorten the time needed for it to develop a hydrogen bomb.

Estimates still vary considerably, with some experts now predicting that Peking may achieve the breakthrough by 1970. But it would still take between 10 and 15 years—or more—before Peking would be able, on present indications, to deliver the bomb by means of a long range rocket.

Export Hopes Bring Buyers For Westcoast

VANCOUVER—Westcoast Transmission at $18 for new 1965 high-voltage line will win a further contract to supply natural gas to the U.S. Other industries were firm with little change in prices.

Banks Lead List

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were higher in the major segments, but traders showed a reluctance to move into speculative issues. As a result trading was carried on at its slowest pace in a month.

Among utilities, B.C. Telephone was ahead 2 1/2 to 7 1/2 and the rights 18 cents to 12.00. Bell Telephone and CPR were up 1/2 each to 59 1/2 and 66 1/2.

Strong Market

MONTREAL (CP)—Stocks advanced in active trading. Dominion Textile rose 1/4 to 3 1/2 and Du Pont 1/4 to 4 1/2. CPR added 1/4 to 59 1/2. Bell Telephone added 1/4 to 7 1/2. Hudson's Bay Mining dropped 1/4 to 6 1/2 and Noranda 1/4 to 4 1/2.

Powerful Rally

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market mounted a surprisingly powerful rally on the eve of the Labor Day weekend.

All records for real estate transactions in the Greater Victoria area through the multiple listing bureau were shattered during the months of July and August.

L. E. Pope, president of the Victoria Real Estate Board said that multiple listing transactions during those two months fell just short of $4,000,000. The monthly average has recently been in the $1,000,000 range.

Lawyers Back Off from Breath Tests

TORONTO (CPI)—The Canadian Bar Association Friday voted to refuse to take the position favoring compulsory alcohol tests for drinking drivers, voting to withdraw a recommendation made to the federal government by its national council last April.

Under pressure from a group of younger lawyers during its week-long convention, the association backed away from a stand which would have made it a crime to drive with a .08-per-cent reading on a breath-analysis machine as well as a crime to refuse to take the test.

Instead, the association's plenary session bowed to a demand from its criminal justice section and decided to have the question studied for a year before bringing it up again at its next convention.

The 150-man council had been under fire for two days before the criminal justice group for stepping into the controversial area without first canvassing the 10,000 membership of the association.

came Friday, scarcely 100 of the 1,200 delegates were in their seats. The count was not announced.

ABORTIONS

Another controversial measure from the criminal justice section comes up today and it seems to have somewhat less chance of passage than the section's drunk-driving move. This is a proposal to legalize abortions, mainly in cases of pregnancies from sexual crimes or where the mother's mental or physical health would be endangered.

The abortion recommendation was passed by the criminal justice group Thursday and almost reached the floor Friday but was deferred until today's closing session because a long debate appeared in prospect.

Simultaneously, the civil liberties section recommended straight withdrawal of the council's proposal to the government.

Samuel Toy of Vancouver, who initially sponsored the stand of the criminal justice body, later accepted the civil liberties motion as amended to provide withdrawal of the council attitude plus a year's study.

REPUTATION

A respected voice raised against repudiating the council's stand was that of 79-year-old Brig. J. A. Clark of Vancouver, 1851-52 association president, who took issue with the argument that it stifled liberty of the individual. Many other liberties were curbed in the interest of law and order without an outcry, he said.

Beating Victim's Body Found

KLEMTU (CP)—The body of a man who had been beaten to death was discovered in a cabin near this remote coastal fishing village 40 miles northwest of Ocean Falls.

Police identified him as Luke Brown, 69. A man was later arrested at Ocean Falls and questioned but no charges were laid immediately.

Murder Case Is Remanded

BURNABY (CP)—Bert George, 22, of Duncan, was remanded one week when he appeared in magistrate's court Wednesday on a charge of capital murder in the shooting death of Roseanne James, 28, as she sat in an RCMP patrol car July 17.

George was remanded to the B.C. Penitentiary for a week before his next court appearance.

The celebrated Juan Marichal case proves something besides the fact that hitting someone with a baseball bat isn't nice. It shows how much the face of sport has changed.

In the old days when someone hit you with a bat or anything else you either slugged him there or met him under the stands later and settled it. Today you sure him for $110,000.

This is not to defend Marichal, who should have been kicked clear out of baseball. Nor can you criticize Roseboro, who is looking to the law because his original plan was unacceptable. Asked what he thought would be a just punishment, Roseboro said, "Just me and him, alone in a room for 10 minutes."

But if Roseboro gets his money from Marichal and the Giants, it will set an interesting precedent. Because if the law works for one sport, it can work for another.

Take football, for example. Teams in the Canadian Football League have always been eager to bend the rules, sending delegates to make them, then rushing home to figure ways of beating them. What's to stop it from being carried a step further? Suppose teams come to the conclusion that it's just as easy to stop an opponent in court as it is on the field? With all that money behind them, they'll probably start scouting the colleges for smart young lawyers as well as athletes.

"Got a great kid out here at Reprehensible U," a scout will report. "Does the 100 in nine flat, weighs 240, and just got his father sprung on a murder rap. How high can I go?" So the teams line up their lawyers, and the season begins. In the first game, New York Giants are playing Cleveland Browns.

Jimmy Brown, naturally, runs over a Giant linebacker. The Giants protest, and Brown is in court again, this time for running without due care and attention.

"My client was standing in his normal position," the "Giants" lawyer will tell the court. "The defendant did then charge at him, and with no room on either side, did willfully and wantonly run directly over him, without regard for consequences."

Brown would be lucky to get off with two years.

Similarly, it wouldn't take much of a lawyer to get Cassius Clay on a hit-and-run charge, or Maury Wills for theft. With a little luck, you might even get Wilt Chamberlain sent up as a second-storey man.

Of course, you wouldn't always win, because the other team would have lawyers, too, and sometimes your own man might get tangled up in sports terminology. For example, consider a purely hypothetical case in tennis.

Tired of missing out on all that money in amateur tournaments, the second-seeded player moves swiftly to get rid of the top man, Abner Doubtfault.

He hires detectives, and for months they shadow their man. Finally, their case ready and apparently airtight, they take him to court.

"Your honor," the lawyer says, "we have indisputable evidence that this man is of such low and unsavory character that he is not worthy to participate in the ancient and honorable sport of tennis, long known for its unimpeachable honesty and fair play."

"I ask the court to accept this sworn statement from a private investigator who says he heard the defendant, Abner Doubtfault, boast that he knew the score and was always happy to win free love."

The courtroom is rocked. The jury takes 15 seconds to reach a verdict of guilty, and the judge orders the defendant to rise and face the court.

"Have you any final statement before I pass sentence?" he asks.

"Gee, your honor," Doubtfault replies. "I didn't say free love, I said three love."

Case dismissed.

It's Beat Malloy In Daffodil Cup

Today's Sport

They run the first 50 laps of the Daffodil Cup race tonight at Western Speedway, and naturally Denver's Jim Mulloy is the man to beat.

He always is, wherever the hot modified sportsmen cars gather in the Pacific Northwest, and the reason shows up in the point standings of the Canadian-American Modified Racing Association.

From positions two to five, it's a real race. But way up there in front is a chap called Mulloy. Add to that the fact that he's the defending Daffodil Cup champ, and you get an idea why he'll be a marked man tonight.

British Rock U.S. Golfdom All But Clinch Walker Cup

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—In a charge led by the youngest of them all, 18-year-old Peter Townsend and 20-year-old Clive Clark, Great Britain's best amateur golfers rocked the highly-favored United States back on its heels Friday by taking a commanding 8-3 lead in the first round of the Walker Cup.

With the sun shining brightly over the Baltimore Country Club's five farms course, the invaders shot down the smug Yanks with great golf from start to finish.

Playing as though they didn't realize the U.S. has won 18 out of the 19 biennial matches, the Britons took a 2-1 lead in the morning doubles and poured it on during the afternoon singles by taking six out of eight.

There will be 12 more points at stake in the same type of competition today to wind up the classic.

The Britons need to win only four of the 12 points possible today to get their first cup on American soil. No points are scored if a match is tied at the end of 18 holes.

The performance justified the assessment of Irish Capt. Joe Carr that "this was the best team ever to leave the shores of Britain" for the assault on the Walker Cup.

Townsend, the British boys and youths champion from England and still a student, played on one of the winning doubles teams and then coolly routed Billy Joe Patton, the 43-year-old veteran U.S. amateur from Morganton, N.C., 3-and-2.

Clark, an architectural student, helped battle to a draw in the team matches and then shattered Mark Hopkins, 22, of Texas City, Tex., in the singles.

Bill Campbell, the U.S. amateur champion from Huntington, W. Va., did his best trying to rally the Americans in the afternoon.

Playing the British amateur titleholder, Mike Bonallack, in the No. 1 singles, the lanky Campbell started off with a 50-

CBC Goes to Bat For TV Agreement

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC Friday defended its co-operative arrangement with the private CTV network on football telecasts as the most beneficial possible for the networks, the Canadian Football League, the advertisers and the fans.

In a statement issued to counteract what it called the continuing flow of "misleading and inaccurate" information about the football TV situation, the corporation said its agreement two years ago with the private network "brought stability out of the confusion and conflict prevailing prior to 1963."

"When both networks share coverage, the result is a greater number of games broadcast, a higher level of payments for rights, greater exposure for the advertisers and better service for the football fans."

The CBC statement, issued by vice-president R. C. Fraser, denied allegations that the five-year agreement with CTV is a "secret" one. In support of the denial, the corporation released copies of its 1963 press release outlining details of the agreement by which the two networks will share coverage of CFL games until 1968.

The agreement accomplished this, the statement said, and also resulted in more CFL games televised, increased TV revenue to the nine CFL clubs, and improved sponsor service.

The CBC said the agreement does not prevent a third party from buying the TV rights to Canadian pro football as was shown this year by sale of the rights to the Montreal advertising agency of Bozchart, Champagne and Pelletier for a record $950,000.

An Amazing Resiliency Features Dodger Story

Los Angeles Dodgers have a pitching staff with the best earned-run average in major league baseball, a team fielding average that rates with the best and they have speed but their greatest asset seems to be resiliency.

With an attack that wouldn't draw a start in a library, the Dodgers somehow manage to bounce back just when it appears that they are headed for the National League scrap heap.

They were practically there Wednesday night after losing twice although Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale held Pittsburgh Pirate to three runs in 20 innings.

That dropped the Dodgers out of the lead and left them without their two pitching aces for the next three games. But Nick Willithe, who had only one game previously, pitched five scoreless innings. Howie Reed and Ron Perranoski wound up with two scoreless innings apiece.

They had to be that good. The Dodgers only had one run after eight innings, scored in the second inning when Jim Lefebvre singled after Ron Fairly had walked and moved up on a sacrifice bunt.

The Dodgers "attacked" again in the ninth. A single, a triple by the light-hitting Lefebvre and a squeeze bunt got the last two runs home.

Cincinnati Reds remained one game behind by outslugging Philadelphia Phillies, 16-7, with a 17-hit attack which broke a 6-4 tie with three runs in the seventh inning and seven in the eighth inning.

ONE-MAN GANG
San Francisco Giants dropped two games off the pace when they couldn't stop Billy Williams. The Chicago Cub star hit his 26th home run and a bases-loaded triple in a 5-4 victory.

That left the three top clubs with 59 losses each. And one game back on the losing side are the Milwaukee Braves, who cooled the late-charging Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-3.

Throwing errors by Roberto Clemente and Donn Clendenen gave the Braves the tying and winning runs in the eighth inning.

But while the mad scramble

continued in the National League, Minnesota Twins kept moving steadily towards American League representation in the world series.

Led by Tony Oliva, who drove in four runs with three singles, and Don Mincher, who hit a two-run homer, the Twins got by the second-place Chicago White Sox, 6-4, in the first game of a series which could end all doubts.

Defeat left the White Sox seven and a half games in arrears. No one else is close enough to cause the Twins any worry.

Other games which had no bearing on the pennant races produced a couple of fine individual performances.

Outfielder Jim Hickman became the first New York Met to hit three home runs in one game, connecting in succession in a 6-3 win over St. Louis Cardinals, and southpaw Al Downing pitched a five-hitter and stroked two hits in an inning as New York Yankees routed Boston Red Sox, 9-0.

Claude Osteen came through Thursday night, Cincinnati Reds tossed a game away, and the Dodgers were back on top.

Rowdy Football Fans Erase British Image

By JIM CONWAY
LONDON (CP)—The British reputation for fair play and good sportsmanship is threatened by a wave of rowdy behavior both on and off the football field.

Britons who once looked with disdain on fights between soccer players and riots among spectators on the Continent and in South America now see the same sort of thing happening here.

The first signs came last season after a number of incidents in which players were banished from games, including several in the English League first division.

Groups of supporters showed their anger by being destructive. Vandalism on excursion trains taking fans to out-of-town matches resulted in several towns being blacklisted by British Railways.

Even before the present season started Aug. 21, reports from non-league professional matches and overseas tournaments seemed to indicate things might get worse.

Bays to Play Edmontonians

Rugby season opens this weekend with a two-game visit by Edmonton Leprechauns.

The Edmonton club plays Oak Bay Wanderers today at Royal Roads, and takes on Cowichan Sunday at Warrenton Road Park, Cowichan.

Both games start at 2:30.

Mixed Bonspiel To Open Season

If you curl and you haven't yet planned to do anything over the Thanksgiving Day weekend, the Victoria Curling Club has a suggestion.

It's plan now to curl later in the mixed bonspiel which will open the curling season. Entries are starting to come in and early interest indicates there is a good chance that the limit of 64 rinks could be reached well in advance of the deadline.

Almost one-third of the spots are already filled with early entries, including two from Mission City and Burnaby and one from Port Alberni.

First bonspiel draw is scheduled for 5 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 11.

In a match between Arsenal and a Jamaican team in Kingston a fight broke out between the teams. The game had to be abandoned after 40 minutes with disgruntled spectators began throwing stones and bottles.

When Manchester United played in Hanover, West Germany, there were fights between British soldiers and local supporters.

LOOKED FOR IT
Scottish fans who travelled to Sunderland, Durham, to see a match roamed the town looking for trouble. On the opening day of the Scottish season, which started a week before the English, several matches were disrupted by rowdy crowds and fights between police and spectators.

Among those trying to do something about the situation is manager Don Revie of Leeds United, which was narrowly beaten in the Football Association Cup final last May. Leeds players sometimes took the trainer's advice to "play it hard" a little too seriously last year. Now Revie wants to improve the team's image.

"Our players will have to be perfect gentlemen this season. Last season Leeds was unjustly labelled a dirty side."

TO MAKE REPORT
The National Federation of Supporters' Clubs, the ruling body of the team fan clubs, has appointed football planner Sir Stanley Rous as "England's No. 1 Soccer Fan."

He is taking stock of the situation and will issue what is likely to be a strongly-worded report on football supporters' behavior in November.

Denis Follows, secretary of the Football Association, is especially concerned because the 1966 World Cup is to be played in England.

"We must be especially careful this season on how we conduct ourselves. We don't want anything to cast shadows over English football at a time when we are staging the world championship."

Viewers Get Every Chance To Try Sponsor's Product

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Writer

There was a time when television viewers made a dash for the icebox and liquid refreshments when the commercials came on. Don't try it these days while watching Canadian Football League games.

You'll never make it. And we guarantee you'll be plastered long before the game ends if you attempt the spring from the living room to the kitchen during every commercial break.

One thing, though. If you like to get up to stretch your legs or do pushups during the commercials, you will probably be a fairly fit citizen—and a joy to physical education instructors—when the football season ends because you'll get lots of chances to exercise.

It has reached the point now where some wags are wondering if the Canadian Football League is sponsoring a brewery, or vice-versa. It seems that every fourth or fifth play is a brewery pitch.

This, of course, applies only to living-room fans in Eastern Canada because the cuds people aren't allowed by liquor regulations to peddle their product via TV in the West.

Next time you watch a game keep your own commercial scoreboard. It's fascinating.

COUNT OF
We tried it the other night during that east-west interlocking contest between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina. The count over the 2½ hours or so showed 36 commercials.

It read something like this: First quarter: Six. Second quarter: Eight. Half-time: Four. Third quarter: Eight. Fourth quarter: Eight. Game over: Two.

Likes Regina

Hugh Just Wants More Hay Says Saskatchewan Is Okay

REGINA (CP)—Hugh Campbell, the glue-fingered flanker of Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference, still hasn't signed a 1965 contract but insists he wants to play football in Regina. Because Campbell and the Roughriders have been able to come to terms, the shifty Washington state graduate is automatically playing out his option. He plays for 10 per cent less than he was paid in last year's contract and at the end of the season will be free to deal with any club he chooses.

Roughrider general manager Ken Preston says Campbell was offered "a sizeable increase" this season but his asking price "is a way out of line."

"The increase Hugh wants is not going to make us broke, but it could lead to others becoming dissatisfied and if we were forced into corresponding raises for the others it could drive us out of football."

SAYS IT ISN'T SO

Preston said he believed Campbell had a firm offer from a National Football League club to make up the difference he would lose this year in playing out his option and a guaranteed, no-out contract for next season.

Campbell says he has not received a firm offer from any other team.

"I don't think I'm being too conceited to believe other teams would be interested in me. If I don't sign here, I would check around teams in the NFL and American Football League."

"But I want to play here. That's the important thing. I like Regina and my teammates and appreciate playing for a fine man like Eagle Keys. I play for fun and satisfaction, but I have to consider my future too."

DENIED CHOICE

Campbell says he is disappointed he has not had the opportunity to talk to the five-man management group of the Riders.

"Perhaps I make a mistake suggesting to split our difference. At one time we were fairly close to agreement and I thought that was a way to settle it. We really weren't that far apart. I guess the thought I was yielding, and wouldn't budge at all."

"I sure wish it could be settled. All I can do now is to go out on the field and try to play well enough to convince them I'm worth more."

Campbell had done a good job of convincing the fan's he's worth whatever it is he's asking. He is the talk of coffee-row here. Fans say he is the finest player Saskatchewan has had on its roster in years.

Campbell joined the Riders in 1963 for the last seven games of the WFL schedule. He was cut from the NFL San Francisco 49ers. In 1964 he caught 71 passes for 1000 yards and 11 touchdowns for Saskatchewan.

CREDENTIALS

He's scored four touchdowns in six games this season and practically beat the Blue Bombers single-handedly in Winnipeg when he gained 206 yards with eight catches, although he didn't score in the game.

He has been tabbed "Gluey Huey" here and has gained the reputation of being the "Sneakiest" pass-catcher in the game.

A relatively little guy at six feet, one inch and a questionable 185 pounds, Campbell has given opposition halfbacks all sorts of defensive troubles with his moves.

The fans here don't know how much it is that he is asking for, but they are hoping he gets it. They figure Saskatchewan needs him.

Volunteer Workers Needed

'Old Time' Requisite for Saviour To Be Theme of Ford's Crusade

The old-time religion pointing out man as a sinner in need of a Saviour will be the two-week long theme of the Leighton Ford crusade starting at 3 p.m. Sunday.

To prepare the way, 51 churches in Greater Victoria have planned and prayed this past year. A total of 2,300 volunteer participants have aided to make the crusade possible.

Will the crusade be a success? LARGE CHOIR

"We pray it shall be so," Chaplain Clifford Waite, executive committee chairman, said Friday.

The number of choir members recruited so far is 772; the hoped for number was 1,500.

After Sunday afternoon's meeting, Mr. Ford will speak every evening at 7:30 until Sept. 19. On the 19th there will be another 3 p.m. gathering.

There will be two Bible study hours each day to be conducted by Archdeacon Desmond Hunt of St. James' Anglican Church, Kingston, Ont.

FREE DOUGHNUTS

One of these classes will be held from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. in Central Baptist Church hall, with free coffee and doughnuts. The time has been chosen to make the studies available for those who go to work at 9 a.m.

The second daily hour for housewives will be held from 10 to 11 a.m. in St. John's Anglican Church.

ON RADIO

Each morning Leighton Ford will speak from 10:30 to 10:45 a.m. on CKDA with messages directed to the house prayer meetings being held throughout the city.

At 8 a.m. Tuesday all ministers in the city are invited for breakfast with Mr. Ford at First United Church.

LUNCHEON

At 12:10 noon Tuesday the evangelist will attend a noon luncheon in the Empress Hotel to be given by the four Kiwanis Clubs of Greater Victoria.

Retreats Sponsored

Retreats sponsored by Christ Church Cathedral will be held this month at Surf Guest House, Gabriola Island.

The retreat for women will be held from Friday afternoon, Sept. 17, until the following Sunday afternoon for men, Friday evening, Sept. 24, until the following Sunday afternoon.

Application forms may be obtained from the Cathedral office.

Our Lord and the 20th Century will be the sermon topic by Rev. Cyril Venables at 10 a.m. in the historic (1873) St. Mary's Anglican Church, Metehosin.

Mr. Venables has just returned from a two-month visit, his first, to England. He was born in Enderby, B.C., of "an old English family."

In his sermon Sunday, he will point out that "the unchangeable Christ is still very much at the centre of the human scene."

Rev. Norman Pell, B.C. director of the Leighton Ford crusade, will be guest preacher at the 10 a.m. service in St. Aidan's United Church, Richmond at Cedar Hill Cross Road.

His topic will be The Secret of Great Living. Soprano Vera Barclay will sing from Handel's Messiah, Come Unto Me.

The new assistant minister at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Rev. R. B. Salters, will preach the 11 a.m. sermon. His subject, Teaching Them.

Mr. Salters is an Irishman. Before coming west, he spent a year at Knox College, Toronto.

The Very Rev. J. L. W. McLean will speak on Labor and Leisure on the 7:30 p.m. CJVI broadcast service.

Dr. Weatherhead

Prominent Methodist Writes On Controversial Topic

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Leslie Weatherhead, 72, one of Europe's most prominent Methodist churchmen, will publish a book this month with the controversial title The Christian Agnostic.

The book promises to be explosive.

Here are a few excerpts:

"Many professing agnostics are fearful belief in the true God than many conventional churchgoers, who believe in a bogey that does not exist, whom they miscall God."

"Frankly, I often wonder why so many people go to church. Christianity must have a marvellous inherent power or the churches would have killed it long ago."

"No one can say that Christ is the only begotten Son of God. There may be a Son of God on Mars."

The modern layman can exclude from his mind the idea of a set day of judgment."

He will speak to the technical school apprentices, HMCS Naden, at 10:40 a.m. Wednesday, then join the chaplains for lunch at the wardroom.

YOUNG PEOPLE

Mr. Ford will address a young people's rally in St. John's Anglican Church at 9:30 p.m. Friday.

Still other appearances before service groups and professional associations are being planned by Chaplain Waite.

"We are hoping to create a violent revolution in Victoria during these next two weeks—within each individual, clergyman as well as laity," said the chaplain.

Bond Prices Surge Ahead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most issues continued to show strength in moderately active Canadian bond market trading this week.

Short- and long-term Canada issues surged ahead. Gains of 10 cents went to the short end of the market, with the 3½-per-cent May 1, 1966, issue closing at $99.27 bid and $99.37 asked and the 4½-per-cent Jan. 15, 1968, issue at $98.50 bid and $98.70 asked.

Increases ranged from ¼ to ½ on the long-term market. The recently issued 5½-per-cent May 1, 1960, issue closed at $98½ bid and $98½ asked after trading as high as $98½ bid. The 5½-per-cent 1975, issue closed at $101 bid and $101½ asked.

Day-to-day money was unchanged at 4 per cent. Amount available rose to $142,000,000 available last week.

Provincial issues also moved ahead with most up ¼ at the end of the week. The province of Ontario 5½-per-cent, 1985, issue was at $99½ bid and $99½ asked at the close of trading Friday.

Eleven So Far

New Peace Group Formed in City

A new peace group has been formed in Victoria—the Peace Action League—and peace rallies, petition circulation, and marches are planned for the capital city.

The group numbers 11 "so far" and they with pro tem executive Mavis Hall, 39 Lewis Street, Bob Munro, 665 Constance Avenue and Larry Lawson, 1120 Colebrook, will meet Sunday to plan strategy.

"We think everybody else is doing a lot of theorizing; we plan to put the theories into action," said Miss Hall, a teacher at Langford Elementary School.

With the election coming up, said Miss Hall, we are going to make sure the main issue becomes the war in Viet Nam and Canada's role in it.

"The big difference between our group and the Comox peace demonstrators is that we are not anarchists."

"We believe in organization in a democratic way."

"We plan to affiliate with all other peace groups in town and do as much for them as we can."

Miss Hall said the program of the league will be to try to get the U.S. to honor the Geneva Conference resolutions of 1954; to get Canada to negotiate for American withdrawal from Viet Nam; to let the Vietnamese people decide their own affairs.

'Go Fishing on Sunday'

Worship Ideas Alter In Modern Society

Sunday may soon be abolished as "the" day of worship in our society, predicts Canon Hilary Butler, writing in the Annals, the newsletter of Christ Church Cathedral.

"If everybody wants to go fishing, or sailing, or driving, or even working on Sunday, then let them worship on Saturday or Tuesday or whatever other day the church can catch them on their home ground."

WORK PATTERN

"Probably automation, and its latest baby called cybernation, will so disturb the traditional pattern of work and play in our society that Sunday will have to be abolished as 'the' day of worship."

"Christians will just have to get used to going to church on other days of the week."

OLD IDEA

Canon Butler said the idea is no more "way out" than was the early Christians' idea to abolish the Sabbath.

Canon Hilary Butler

"Quite early in their history the Christians decided that there is nothing inherently sacred in the Sabbath," entirely sacred in the Sabbath, the seventh day of the week.

"They broke with traditional Jewish custom in setting aside instead the first day of the week as a customary day for public worship and almsgiving."

And the idea of Sunday as a day of rest, says Mr. Butler, came about only from the fourth century on.

PUBLIC WORSHIP

Pointing out that the Seventh-Day Adventists seem to get along very well with Saturday, the canon says the day is immaterial, the important thing is that the public worship of God should go on.

"And if Sunday itself may soon have to step down, certainly the program of service-times so sacred in our Anglican cultus must bow to revision."

"Now that top hats and frock coats are passe—even in Victoria—the time-table evolved to suit that era must be revamped."

New Rector Preaches Sunday

No Jazz at St. Paul's

By IAN ARROL.

With the bishop in attendance and dean celebrating Communion, the canon directed and 50-voice youth choir and an orchestra of electric guitar, drums and organ in jazz "Mass."

The canon was Rev. Grahame Baker in 1964 at Christ Church Cathedral, Vancouver, on the occasion of the opening of an Anglican Youth Conference.

FIRST SERMON

He is the new rector at St. Paul's in Victoria, the successor to Canon George Biddle, and he will deliver his first sermon at 11 a.m., Sunday.

The 38-year-old clergyman moved to Victoria this week with his bride of three weeks, the former Heather Ireland, who was born in Victoria.

JAZZ MASS

"The jazz mass was an experiment in the use of modern-day rhythms for young people in church."

"It was a success—felt as very deeply devotional by the young people."

It is not an experiment the new rector is planning for Victoria, for St. John's.

But he does have plans for the ministry of music at the church, not only on Sundays but throughout the week.

Music has been and is very much a part of Canon Baker's life. For the past three years at the Cathedral in Vancouver he was organist and choir director.

His record collection at his new home—suite 303, Wedgewood Terrace, 1655 Chambers—contains selections "from calypso to baroque, with the emphasis on choral and organ."

"A lot of humdrum bad music is used in church. I am concerned with the raising of standards."

For the canon, this does not mean the music has to be sanctified by age.

"First class contemporary composers have written excellent music for the church: Benjamin Britten, Ralph Vaughan Williams, Michael Tippett and John Joubert of South Africa."

The associate of the Royal Canadian College of Organists is also a harpsichord enthusiast, and owns a harpsichord made in Vancouver.

Although Canon Baker was born in England and has been in Canada only since 1958, his wife's parents were married in the church of which her husband is now the rector.

Mrs. Baker was born in St. Joseph's Hospital, where her brother Dr. Charles Ireland is now a doctor.

23 Years in House of Commons

Veteran Lakehead Cleric Dies After Long Illness

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—Rev. Dan McIvor, 84, veteran churchman and politician, died at his home here Thursday following a lengthy illness.

Earlier, he twice saw his obituary in print, once in 1928 in a church publication and then in 1958 in the Montreal Star.

Of both incidents, he later remarked: "They're trying to put me away and I'm not ready to go yet."

Born in County Tyrone in Ireland, he came to Canada in 1894 and later graduated from the University of Manitoba and became a Presbyterian minister. He served congregations in the Manitoba communities of LaRiviere, Killamey, Souris and Norwood before coming to Fort William as a United Church minister in 1927.

"Rev. Dan" fell in love with Fort William and its people took to him. He founded First Church United here and after the financial collapse of the country in the late 1920s, he worked unceasingly for the welfare of the unemployed.

Unemployment in the Lakehead area prompted him to enter federal politics. He became Liberal member for Fort William in 1935 after briefly following CCF lines and was re-elected successively in 1940, 1945, 1949 and 1953. When he retired from the Commons with 23 years' service, he was the oldest member at Ottawa.

A non-smoker and teetotaler, "Rev. Dan" took an active interest in several Lakehead hockey teams.

Jaycees Stress Free Exhibits In Fair Planning

Emphasis will be on free exhibits during the 1966 Jaycee Fair, according to managing director Don Mathison.

"Trend in fairs these days is getting as much viewing as possible free to the public," said Mr. Mathison.

The fair will be held May 16 to 21 in Memorial Arena, and Mr. Mathison and his associates are already deep in preparation for it.

Major concerns have expressed interest in setting up exhibits in the fair, he said.

Two national firms are bidding for such displays. The Great Britain and the national defence department are looking into the matter.

Last week a representative of the department, Lt.-Col. Charles Flemming, spent several hours with Mr. Mathison looking over possible display areas.

Among possible service displays considered are an amphibious troop carrier, a navy jet fighter, a small arms display and the army in action in miniature.

U.S. to See Historic Magna Carta

LONDON (AP)—The 1225 Magna Carta has left Britain for display in the United States. A spokesman at the public record office said:

"We believe this is the first time the document has left the country."

Measuring 12 inches by 22 inches, Magna Carta will go first to Washington. There, in the National Archives, it will be displayed next to the Declaration of Independence during the world conference on world peace through law, Sept. 12-18.

From Washington, Magna Carta will be taken to Atlanta during the October meeting of the national council of the English-Speaking Union of America. It will be returned to the public record office here early in November.

The 1225 Magna Carta is the revised edition of Magna Carta sealed at Runnymede in 1215. It is in Latin and bears a fragment of the Great Seal.

August Hits High, Low

ALBANY—Weather in the Albany Valley during August ran the gamut from a high of 102 on Aug. 1 to a low of 38 degrees on Aug. 29, according to Colin Wilson, McCoy Lake weatherman.

Mean temperature for August is 64.

Precipitation was up, with 4.43 inches falling in August, compared to a 2.35 average.

However rainfall for the year so far has been only 29.73 inches, 11.47 inches short of the average for the first eight months of the year.

Altogether, variety was the watchword in August, with several broiling hot days, unusually chilly nights, two thunderstorms and a hail storm to vary the weather situation.

Russia Maintains Churches As Museums of Artistry

By JOHN WEYLAND

YAROSLAVL, U.S.S.R. (AP)—This medium-sized city north of Moscow once had 150 churches. Seventy-five remain. There are religious services at one.

The Soviet Union keeps up many of the old churches in this country despite official policy of atheism, to give the people pride in Mother Russia. That pride stimulates patriotism.

Almost all the well-preserved churches now are museums, shown off for their art work. From the outside their onion domes, high white walls, arched windows, and golden crosses look strangely out of place in the godless state.

But inside, the thinking of that state is much in evidence. The guides proudly show off the frescoes of religious scenes which cover the walls and ceilings. They praise the artists for their skill. But they give no credit to the Christian faith which inspired the work.

GLORIFY PAST

It's a way of glorifying the Russian past without endorsing that part of it which has been officially abandoned.

"See that painting of the last judgment," the guide said at the Church of Elijah the Prophet here. "Only the Orthodox Christians are being saved. The others are sent down to hell."

He smiled, as if to say—"What nonsense."

A guidebook declares: "All this splendor had only one aim: to raise the prestige of the church in the eyes of the believers."

The ruling classes, frightened by mighty anti-federal demonstrations of the poor people, needed the support of the church and religion. These made authority sacred, increasing the joke.

Old-Works Build Patriotism

Still the Soviet government, though hard-pressed economically, keeps its big program of church restoration going.

At Pereslavl, 100 miles north of Moscow, the dome and walls of the monastery chapel have been done over with great care in a soft blue and white. The result is a striking example of a late Russian church interior.

At Rastov, 40 miles farther north, scaffolding surrounds many of the buildings in a great religious complex. Domes knocked over there during a storm have been re-erected. Icons are being restored on a large scale.

Soviet citizens moving past the frescoes of Christ, the saints and Biblical figures look impassively at this testament to the faith of their fathers. While some religious sentiment undoubtedly remains, the government's atheistic teaching has had its effect.

A performance of Donizetti's The Pear Fishers was given here at the diesel motor factory's cultural centre. In this opera a priest tries to bring about the death of two young lovers.

"You see," a brawny middle-aged man in a checked shirt said afterwards, "those priests always did bad things."

Rocket Launches Five Satellites

MOSCOW (UPI)—For the second time in two months, Soviet scientists Friday launched five satellites with one rocket.

The launching of the five sputniks—dubbed Cosmos 80 through 84—tied the Soviet record set July 16.

But it left Russia still second in the multiple-launching standings to the United States, which put up eight with one rocket earlier this year.

It was the Russians' first space effort since the United States sent Gemini 5 into orbit last month for eight days with Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. aboard.

It was also the Soviets' first launch since they sent up Cosmos 79, an unmanned satellite, on Aug. 25.

Tass said the five new Cosmos satellites "carry scientific instruments for continued space research under a program announced on March 16, 1962."

One Spray Will Do

By M. V. CHESNUT

"Dear Mr. Chesnut: My husband sprayed our apple tree last spring, but our apples are still wormy and scabby. Why didn't the spray work?"

This is a fairly common complaint in my mail, and it is based on the fallacy that a single spraying can give complete protection to a fruit tree for a whole season. Actually, for the complete and effective control of pests and diseases, the B.C. Department of Agriculture recommends seven sprays per year for apples, six, for pears, eight for plums and prunes, seven for peaches and nine for cherries.

Each spray is a different combination of chemicals, and the timing of each application is most important, for the spray must be applied just when the particular pest or fungus spore you are gunning for happens to be at its most vulnerable stage of growth.

For the man with the sizeable orchard of fruit trees, I think it pays to give his trees the full treatment. The excellent spray calendar available free of charge from the Department should be thumbtacked to the toolshed wall and followed exactly.

The homeowner with just one or two backyard trees, however, can get away with a considerably less complicated spray program.

For one thing, the size of the crop from just one or two trees doesn't justify the expense of so many different sprays, nor does the working homeowner have enough free time from his regular job to apply all these sprays at exactly the correct times.

For another thing, the isolated backyard tree isn't nearly as susceptible to pest attack as when a great number of similar trees are grown in close proximity. An infestation or infection in an orchard is a much more serious matter, as the pest or blight can build up like wildfire with such an easy jump from one tree to another.

In a simplified program for the backyard gardener, the one basic spray is the winter wash of dormant spray oil, two pints in five gallons of water. This one spray offers reasonably good control over quite a few pests, including aphids, which are always present in every garden.

One big advantage of the dormant oil spray is that the timing is not critical. It can go on any time the trees are leafless. Ideally in December or January, but if the weekend stock-taking at the office comes along on the date you had earmarked for the spraying of your trees, no harm is done. Just get the job done any spell of fine weather before the end of January.

With this one basic spraying accomplished, I don't think it pays to worry about the pests which may still attack your trees. The dormant oil won't take care of them all. It is true, for bugs and blight spores are bound to come drifting in from other gardens. Just keep your eyes open, making frequent close inspections of your trees and paying particular attention to the backs of the leaves. If anything abnormal turns up, give them a squirt of some all-purpose orchard spray.

Every manufacturer of garden chemicals puts out his own brand of such all-purpose spray—this is what you might call a "buckshot" treatment, containing a mixture of ingredients formulated to control the leaf-curl disease. This is a must, and I'll be reminding you about it at the proper time.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Hands It to Youth

There is a certain college phonies, less susceptible to sur-which appointed a new presi-face charm, and not nearly so dent a few years ago. He was corrupted by ambition and selected from more than 1000 prejudice as the older genera-candidates, by a board of trustees.

I have lectured to hundreds of groups, and it is always the student audiences who are most alert and responsive. They don't want corny jokes, flattery, flowery words, pompous philosophizing, or the dear-old-pal approach. They want honesty, bluntness and a healthy skepticism. These approval means more to me than a scroll signed by a swarm of civic dignitaries.

One reason and perhaps the chief reason that so many colleges are ineffectually run is that the men chosen to run them are chosen for the wrong reasons.

They are picked because they can raise money for it is hoped they can, because they will give offence to no substantial members of the community, and because they comport themselves at cocktail parties with the correct mixture of geniality and austerity.

All of these are wrong reasons. A college president should be a man with a lust for virtue, in the noble sense of the word. He should be indifferent to money, impatient with respectability, impolite to bores, and immune to cocktail parties.

He should be able to strike a spark with the students and the faculty, however much his irreverent behavior might embarrass the trustees. He should know that a prosperous college is not the same as a good one, and that if you have to make a choice between size and quality, you would rather have one student well trained than 1,000 mass produced.

Such men are rare. They would not be so rare, I am convinced, if the young people themselves were given a chance to interview, and a voice in selecting, their academic leaders.

Bride Wins Blessing

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Pat Neal will be returning to his acting career. The good word from England came from the producer of the film "The Wind". It is always news and fresh every time around.

Carol Lynley was telling me of when she was lost in London after night film-shooting. "A man in a lorry (truck) stopped me and said, 'Where are you going, baby?' He thought I was a prostitute. I couldn't blame him. I was wearing an Eskimo parka and was carrying the script of 'Bunny Lake' in my hand. Since when are these regulation dress for a lady of the night?"

Hayley Mills will remain in Hollywood after she completes her role in Mother Superior with Rosalind Russell. "I want to know what it's like in Hollywood without working," Hayley told me. "It's my first time here without my mother or father. I'll be 20 in April and it would be all right for me to live alone. But what is the point? I'm staying with my sister Juliet and her husband. Their baby is now 15 months old and looks like Lord Beaverbrook. My contract with Disney terminated last year with That Darn Cat. I am now free as the wind. I just finished a picture with my father (John Mills), Bats With Baby Faces. It's a line from T. S. Eliot's poem, The Waste Land. He has another picture that he'd like me to do. I'll stay in Hollywood until Christmas. Then I'm going with my family to Cairo for a holiday."

Simone Signoret remained in Hollywood to film a Chrysler theatre with master Bob Hope. She came to promote her role in Ship of Fools. The $10,000 she received from Bob made the trip even more fun.

If an ex-queen, Soraya, can become a method actress—via the Actor's Studio, this fall—then a princess, Furstenburg, can become a plain performer on the screen. The beauty who married Prince Hohenlohe-Langenberg when she was 13, then Count "Baby" Pignatelli, and learned to regret both, is now 25 and receiving movie offers. There is one problem. She is on the verge of getting engaged and married to the Marquis Francois Suarez D'Ulan. He makes champagne, and is a millionaire of course.

Some News Is Nice

JACK SMITH

Sometimes the news—all of it—is so absolutely dreadful that one has to be reminded that human beings can occasionally be charming and have a fondness for innocent merriment.

Science can usually be counted on to turn up something amusing, when every other human institution fails. According to the Psychiatric Reporter, a magazine for psychiatrists, two men at the University of California are studying the ability of plants to learn.

These men, Holmes and Gruenberg, have been working with Mimosa pudica, a plant whose leaflets are so sensitive they fold up, as the Psychiatric Reporter observes, "at the slightest insult."

Merely being sensitive to touch is one thing. What is more important is that Mimosa pudica has been taught to "adapt" to a constant dripping of water. In time it gets used to the drops and declines to fold up anymore. But it will still fold up when touched by a scientist's finger.

With a whimsy that comes as a delightful surprise in a scientific journal, the Psychiatric Reporter comments:

"Well, Holmes and Gruenberg, that's all very well for Mimosa pudica, a sensitive type raised in a refined, academic atmosphere. After all, if you can't teach a student like that, whom can you teach?"

"What about the real incorrigibles, the delinquents who scorn education?" Dig-taria Sanguinalis, Taraxacum Officinale and worm running shows that life is still full of wonderful things, although some days we have to look pretty hard for them.

Outside of that, and some thing that happened to one of our cats, I can't think of anything amusing that happened last week. Not on earth, any Reporter for this fascinating way.

Three to Stand Trial

Testimony Differs

Police evidence clashed in city magistrate's court Friday over the question of identity of a "third man."

Det. Sgt. Norman Bush testified at a preliminary hearing that other officers had named outright Sidney Travers, no fixed address, as a man seen leaving the scene of discovery of a stolen safe.

Earlier, however, Constable Peter Voth had admitted under cross-examination by lawyer Desmond Owen-Flood that he did not realize the man was Travers until after his name had been mentioned to him, although he had a clear mental image of the person he saw.

Sgt. Angus Stewart, who arrived at the scene later, said Constable Voth had not identified the fleeing man to him.

STAND TRIAL

Magistrate William Ostler ruled that Travers must stand trial along with Gerald Bruce of Garden Park, and Russell Bowcott, 2648 Scott, on charges of breaking and entering the Fairfield Pharmacy at 301 Cook on or about July 5, and stealing a safe, and possession of the safe.

They were remanded to Sept. 10, for formal committal.

MADE OFF

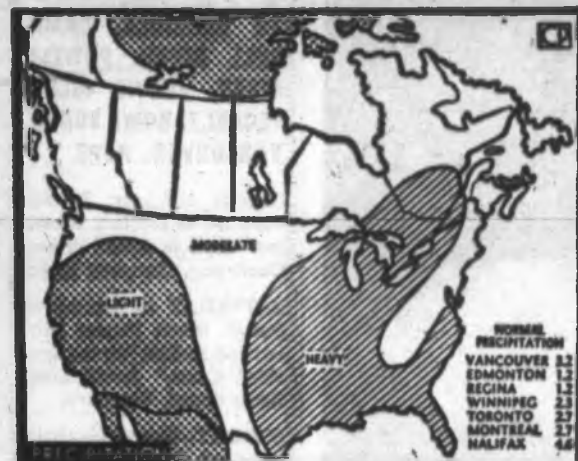

Court was told that the safe, which had contained $345 and narcotics, was found in a station wagon stopped on Princess Avenue early July 5.

Police claimed Bruce was found in the vehicle and Bowcott and a third man made off. Bruce had said he was returning a money debt to a person who lived in the area.

JURY TO DECIDE

Magistrate Ostler said it was for a jury to decide the question of identity.

All three men had elected trial before a higher court on both charges.

Yemen Agog Over Tourist

SAN'A, Yemen (AP) — This sunbaked land on the Arabian Red Sea has finally crashed the tourist trade, and the government has just issued its first statistics on the number of tourists to visit the country.

The first genuine, camera-carrying, guidebook-toting tourist to get onto the official records—at least since the revolution of 1962—is Lois Doyle of Leominster, Mass.

Her arrival caused a minor upheaval in San'a. Yemen isn't set up for the tourist trade. There is not a restaurant in the entire country, and until a crumbling palace with shell holes in the roof was transformed into living quarters by the United Nations two years ago, there had never been a hotel.

"Thank God I came here. There aren't many places like this left in the world, and I'll never forget it," said Miss Doyle.

STAN DELAFLANE

"We are flying to Rio de Janeiro in January. What is the weather like and how do you dress?"

Rio in January is in mid-summer. Muggy. Hot. It rains a third of the time. But Rio dresses like any big city—even at Copacabana beach hotels. Coats and ties all day. Women are pretty dressy for lunch and dinner. It's a very social town with the "in" people all eating at the "in" places.

Varig, the Brazilian airline, carries a "social hostess" as well as a working stewardess. They put on the most elegant dinner—from New York or Los Angeles—that I've ever seen on an airline. Takes about four hours to serve.

The evening trip around the harbor is inexpensive and worthwhile. Music and nightclubs are good and fairly expensive. By January, they'll be warming up for Carnival. The weekend street parades are great.

"How do we get from Mexico City to Merida in Yucatan?" You fly it in short time. Or you drive: By way of Vera Cruz or you can go down the main Pan American highway through Oaxaca and cut across to the coast at Tehuantepec. I'd go one way and come back the other.

By way of Vera Cruz, there are a couple of ferry crossings. If there's a "norte" wind blowing, you might be held up a couple of days. The "nortes" come during the winter.

"We are interested in semi-precious stones and would like to know where to buy them in Mexico..." Queretaro, north of Mexico City, is the gem-cutting town. Supposed to have good opals and topaz. But you should know your stones. I've had them assure me their alexandrites were the real thing. I found out later they were made of some Swiss-made material. They do quite a business selling glassy imitations to Indians who resell them to tourists along the highway as "stolen from the mines."

Shares His Travel Experience

"What about a winter trip to Tahiti? Is it warm?" It's always warm and tropical. But you have to like rain—winter is rainy. I sat about a week in the Hotel Tahiti and it never stopped raining. I went over to Samoa and it rained 15 inches—repeat 15—each day for three days. But the rest of the year is grand. And these are the South Pacific islands of your dreams. Lush, green, flowery. Wonderful lagoons and a blue, blue sea.

"How about winter in Japan?"

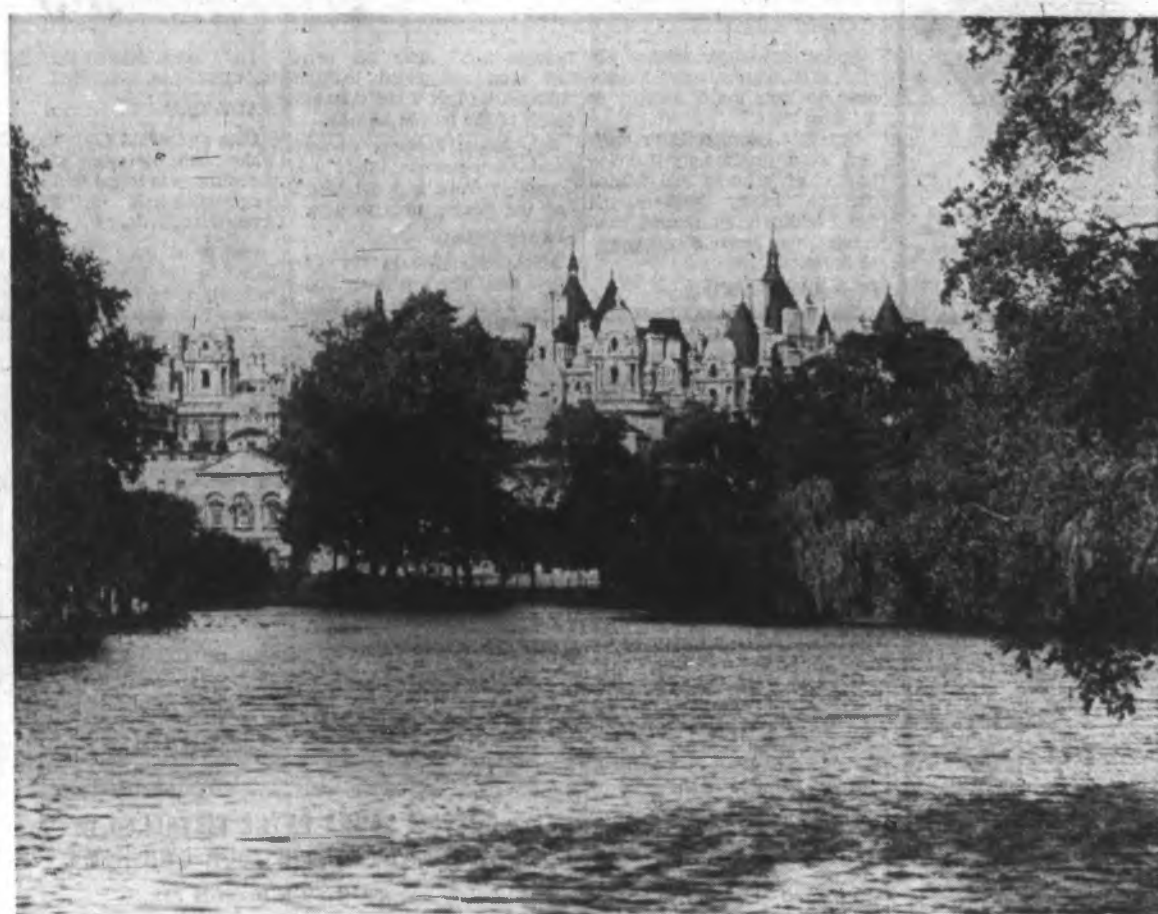

Skiing is beginning to catch on in the Japanese mountains. But for general touring, it's cold. Tokyo gets down to 30 degrees in January. A biting, humid cold. Better stay in Western-style heated hotels. The Japanese hotels bring in a half-dozen little slivers of glowing charcoal in a pot of sand. And that's the heat for today.

"...the cost of haircuts in Spain?"

I can't remember everywhere. But the most expensive was the barber shop in the Hilton in Madrid—35 cents. I think they were about 10 cents out in the country.

"Is it true they have special tourist meals in Spain?"

Just recently. The government ordered all restaurants to have one full meal on the menu at a very small price. De luxe tourist places at something less than $2. And smaller places around 80 cents. A full lunch or dinner in Spain means seven courses with wine.

London is full of surprises. Like this. A few yards from Buckingham Palace and stone's throw from bustling West End is haven of St. James's Park with its lake, "weeping" trees and wildlife. Buildings in background are some of government ministries of Whitehall.

LONDON: So Much to See So Little Time to See It

University of Victoria undergraduate Robin Jeffrey writes the following at conclusion of extensive European tour.

By ROBIN JEFFREY

LONDON — Samuel Johnson once said that the man who was tired of London was tired of life.

And 200 years after Dr. Johnson, London is still capable of driving tourists into fits of frustrated frenzy. It is impossible to see London's attractions in a matter of days or weeks. Native Londoners often know little more than their own districts.

Thus on returning home the tourist is left to contemplate the dreadful certainty that, sooner or later, at some gathering, his "You must see the National Gallery—it's so intrinsic," will be called from the back of the room by an equally enthusiastic "Yes, isn't it?" and raised with a sly "But what did you think of the Victoria and Albert Museum?"

COSTLY PETARD

And $5,000 in fares and an incalculable expenditure of energy are hoist with this superbly administered oneupmanship petard.

The first tourist may try to counter with a glowing reference to Kew Gardens or Madame Tussaud's, but the initiative is lost, and the listeners will drift away to the speaker who played the Victoria and Albert Museum with such suave mastery.

And that's the danger of London: it is so vast and its attractions are so many.

There are about 40 live-production theatres, all of them larger than Victoria's Royal, clustered around Piccadilly Circus. In the same area, there are another 40 movie houses.

There's the British Museum, the Victoria and Albert Museum (of fine art), the London Museum (illustrating the history of London), and the Imperial War Museum. The guide books list another 20.

The Imperial War Museum alone is worth a day's outing.

Dealing with the actions of British and Commonwealth Forces since August 1914, the museum is on the site of the Bethlehem lunatic asylum or Bedlam. Part of the original hospital building is still standing.

Among the displays are small arms used by enemy and allied nations in the two wars, Montgomery's black beret, the field piece which fired the first British shot in 1914, and models of every ship in the navies of the Commonwealth since 1914.

There's a section devoted to Bomber Command, and in it is a description of the activities of the RAF's "Guy Gibson, VC, DSO and bar, DFC and bar, Freeman of Victoria, Vancouver Island."

Gibson, who was killed in 1944, received the latter distinction when touring North America in 1943.

If you get through half the museum before lunch, you're doing well, and you can wander down Lambeth Road past Captain Bligh's house, and have lunch at the Three Stages before completing your inspection.

That's one day — one museum.

Then, of course, there's St. Paul's Cathedral (where 18th century Admiral Rodney has probably the most attractive and scantily-clad angel-choir in the world grouped around his monument) and Westminster Abbey; the Houses of Parliament and the Tower of London; the Zoological Gardens and Buckingham Palace; Nelson's Column and the new 620-foot post office communication tower.

If you take a coach, you can go to Harrow, or Windsor Castle or Disraeli's beautiful country estate, now owned by the National Trust, at Hughenden near High Wycombe. Or a boat ride on the Thames will take you to the National Maritime Museum at Greenwich. Stratford-on-Avon is an afternoon bus trip.

Or you can stand at Hyde Park Corner and spend a day people-watching. You could spend a lifetime people-watching in London and never be bored. And that's just scratching the surface.

Old Dr. Johnson was right: you'll never get tired of London — but London will certainly tire

The Canada Pension Plan and its benefits

will do for people like Thor Andersen, a farmer who works for himself and makes $4,000 a year.

The Andersens are both aged 45 and have no family. If Thor's earnings continue at $4,000 a year until he reaches age 65, he can look forward to a retirement pension of $83.33 a month from the Plan. This, plus the $75 each Mr. and Mrs. Andersen will receive from Old Age Security, will give them a total of $233.33 a month—equal to 70% of Thor's previous average earnings.

If Thor becomes disabled anytime after 1970, having contributed until his disability began, he will get a disability pension of $87.50 a month. This will continue until he becomes 65 when he will receive his retirement and Old Age Security pensions.

Should Thor die anytime after 1967, having contributed until his death, his wife will receive a widow's pension of $56.25 a month until she becomes 65. From then on she will get $125 a month—$50 from the Plan and $75 from Old Age Security. At the time of Thor's death Mrs. Andersen will be entitled to a lump sum payment of $500.

All benefits under the Plan will maintain their value. The actual benefits payable will probably be higher than those given here since benefits will be adjusted to meet changes in living costs and in wage levels before they are paid and changes in living costs after they become payable.

What will the Plan cost you?

If you, like Thor, in a particular year, have self-employed earnings of $4,000 you will pay $122.40 in instalments, in the same way you pay income tax.

This advertisement is one of a series which relates some of the important benefits of the Canada Pension Plan to individual circumstances.

authority of the Minister of National Health and Welfare, Canada,
The Honourable Judy LaMarsh.

Big Locomotive Bigger Headache

By JIM BRAMAN

A slight moving-day problem faces Leonard Hutton, 922 Old Esquimalt Road: where can he store an eight-ton conversation piece?

Mr. Hutton owns a former German steam locomotive, and has it parked in his front yard, but the family has made plans to move to another part of the city and he is now seeking a permanent storage spot for the engine.

As an eight-ton locomotive is an expensive item to tote around.

"After moving to the new place, I may feel like moving again some day, and if I can store the engine, there will not be that added expense," Mr. Hutton said. "When we moved from Mendocino to Esquimalt it cost me almost $100 to move the engine."

Mr. Hutton's 16-year-old daughter, Leona, believes it is really something to have a genuine steam locomotive in the front yard.

"It's a marvelous conversation piece — I don't have to give people my address. I just tell them to stop at the house on Old Esquimalt Road with the green-and-black locomotive in front," Leona said.

"It really shocks the bug-friends when they first see it, but it's not long before they are climbing all over it," she said. "Dad gets a lot of fun out of showing the kids the engine and I kind of like the darned old thing now, too."

Mr. Hutton, a former CNR engineer, bought the locomotive last year and had it shipped here from Germany.

He will not say what he paid for it, but he admits paying $1,155 in customs duties to bring it into the country, and said he also paid the five per cent provincial tax.

"If anybody wants to buy one of these things from Germany, he had better have more than $10,000 in his pocket," Mr. Hutton said.

SURFACE MINING
He said the engine was built in 1935 for use in the German surface mining industry. The engine was only in use for seven years before it was retired when the mine closed down.

"This engine is in first-class shape and could be ready to operate in two hours," Mr. Hutton said. "It has passed inspection by the chief boiler inspector of the provincial department of commercial transport."

ONLY ONE OF KIND
He said it was the only one of its kind in Canada, but there may be seven or eight in the United States.

He hopes to interest the city in building a short 24-inch gauge rail line in one of the city parks on which to operate the locomotive as a tourist attraction.

VERY POPULAR
"They are very popular south of the border, where there are quite a few park railways in operation," he said. "It only takes about half a mile of track, a couple of coaches, and this engine and the city would have another real attraction."

Mr. Hutton has not heard from the city yet regarding his proposal.

Old-Time Mariner Dies in Hospital

Old-time Victoria area mariner Henry Hunter died Friday in hospital here, aged 94. Born in Langor, Scotland, Mr. Hunter lived in Victoria for more than 60 years.

COAST SHIPS

He worked on CPR coastal ships, including 15 years with the Princess Maquina.

He also worked with the harbor marine department.

WIFE TUESDAY

He is survived by his wife Mary, his daughter and son-in-law Molly and John Paterson; four sons, John in Regina, David, in Port Alberni; Robert in Port Coquitlam; and George Hunter of Victoria; six grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be at 1 p.m. Tuesday in McCall Bros. funeral chapel. Burial will be in Hatley Memorial Gardens.

Tractors Snarl Country Roads

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — Determined farmers of this Lake St. John-Saguenay district carried out their threats Friday by blocking roads with slow-moving tractors and then called a halt to the demonstration for the night.

Leaders of the Catholic Farmers' Union local said more than 1,000 tractors were on the roads.

Quebec Provincial Police, whose normal force of 60 in the area was augmented by 100 from Quebec City, reported no major incidents and said they had received co-operation from union leaders.

Police said the farmers obeyed orders to discontinue two lines of traffic. There were some traffic snarls and delays.

Union leaders called a night meeting and said the road-blocking will continue today unless there is a decided change in the situation.

TOOK ACTION

The farmers took their unusual action in demanding $5,000, 000 from the Quebec government as compensation for crop loss and damage from heavy rains and generally bad weather in the summer of 1964. They have also said they will not repay government farm loans until their demands are met.

The union local, with 3,300 members, said it was dissatisfied with the Quebec government's announced $1,000,000 aid grant.

Soldiers' Beer Lasts Sailors Have It Rough

By BOB PETHICK

If available statistics are to be believed the Royal Canadian Navy has a larger appetite for beer than the Canadian Army.

At least that's the way it looked Friday night when at about 8 p.m. the petty officer's mess heard the horrible sound of hissing air which marked the end of the supply.

NO PANIC

While all this was going on patrons at the Queen's Own Rifles Mess at Work Point were quietly sipping away with no apparent panic.

A spokesman at the mess realized the supply of bottled beer would last until the end of the month. Only regular members of the mess were being served.

LOCKED UP

The canny army conservationists also have a supply of draft beer but that has been locked up until a fishing derby takes place next week.

Does this mean the navy

drinks more beer than the army?—not exactly.

MEN AWAY

What it amounts to is the First Battalion of the QORs is in Cyprus and the membership of the Work Point Mess is way down at present. So there is a more to go around.

Several petty officers who were quick to size up the situation were guests at the army mess Friday night.

BRIGHTER

Things were a little brighter for the navy's enlisted men as the Fleet Club still had a supply of draft and it looked as though it would last until the end of the week.

Elsewhere the situation continued to grow more gloomy with only a few city pubs likely to hold out till Labor Day.

And it appears things will get worse before they improve as there appears to be no let-up in sight in the 12-day-old strike between breweries and brewery workers.

Crowds Jam City Square

Hundreds pack Centennial Square to hear Provincial Secretary Wesley Black speak at opening of Senior Citizens Centre Friday. —(William E. John)

Weekend Offers Choice

Victoria concertgoers have a choice of three events over the Labor Day holiday weekend. All of them are free.

The Beacon Hill Park series winds up the season with offerings on Sunday and Monday afternoon. Both starting at 2:30 p.m.

Sunday afternoon a conflict of times arises when the Victoria Symphony offers a two-hour program in Centennial Square starting at 3 p.m.

The Labor Day concert will move into the McPherson Playhouse on Tuesday night at 8 p.m. if it is rained off.

Otto-Werner Mueller will lead the symphony into the Playhouse from Centennial Square Sunday afternoon if weather endangers the program.

Camden Band Shell will feature the Irving Luzzier Dixieland Band with guest artists Mary Grant and Norma McCurdy on Sunday afternoon.

On Monday at 2:30 p.m. James Fraser will lead the Victoria Concert Orchestra as the 20-piece group offers selections from the light classics.

Last Fling This Weekend Tourist Industry Braces Itself

With extra buses, extra ferry trips and extra airline trips scheduled for the weekend, a bumper crop of travelers is expected to converge on Victoria.

Hotel and motel operators are expecting heavy bookings for this last fling before back-to-school time, but a hotel spokesman stressed there would be room for everyone.

Due to a misunderstanding, a Vancouver report had all accommodation in Victoria booked solid for the weekend, but both hotel and motel operators said Friday that this was not the case.

Extra trips are being put on by the B.C. government ferries with a fifth ship, with half-hour service from 2:30 to 10:30 p.m. Monday.

FULL WEEKEND

A spokesman for the ferry service said a "full weekend" was expected.

The Black Ball Ferry reported traffic normal at present, but believed the Ocho would sail at near capacity during the weekend. A spokesman suggested the best ferry to take to be sure of no holdup would be the 6 a.m. from Victoria for those returning home after the weekend.

Car reservations aboard the CPR ferry were almost sold out for Monday from Victoria to Seattle, and heavy traffic was expected up from Seattle today.

Air Canada will move more than 1,000 passengers on regularly scheduled flights and four extra flights during the weekend. All flights were reported booked to capacity.

HOLIDAY EVENTS

With good weather promised for at least two of the three days of the holiday, visitors and residents will have a number of events to take in.

On top of the list is the Saanich Fair in Central Saanich, second in size only to the Pacific National Exhibition. The fair runs Saturday to Monday and includes a horse show, livestock competition, produce exhibits and a midway.

Other events include an archery contest at Hampton Park at 9 a.m. today and at the dockyard archery range on Wilfert Road at 9 a.m. Monday, car races at Western Speedway Saturday and Sunday, concerts in Beacon Hill Park at 2:30 p.m. Sunday and Monday, and an open-air concert in Centennial Square by Victoria Symphony Orchestra at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Island Authors Meet Thursday

Victoria and Island branch of the Canadian Authors Association will meet in the cafeteria of the Douglas Building at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Grab for Curly Locks

In switch from romance stories Friday, girls grabbed for locks of guy's hair, in this case, curly locks of Wailer Ron Gardener. Popular rock and roll group has autograph session at Hudson's Bay store this afternoon. —(William Boucher)

Saanich Experiment

Home Kindles Will to Live

By AL ARNASON

Elderly people all dread the prospect of being placed in a rest home.

And with good reason. The stuff of life—hope, food, exercise and sleep—no longer matter so much.

But in Saanich's municipally-owned Royal Oak Private Hospital, the trend is being reversed by an 18-month-old program of individually-tailored exercise.

FINGER EXERCISES

Prescribed by Saanich public health department physiotherapist Mrs. Kay Thompson, the exercises vary from finger and hand movements walking with or without aid of a wheeled walker.

Later comes occupational therapy.

Their effect on the 42 patients that fill the hospital to maximum has amazed even the observers who were sold on the idea to begin with.

Roll Stabilizers Fitted

Roll stabilizers being fitted to the Pacific Naval Laboratory's research ship CNAV Endeavour should calm down rolling motion which caused concern when ship was working in heavy seas. Ship has oil-controlled anti-roll system which was not immediately effective. Job by Yarrows Ltd. costing $20,000 is expected to be finished Sept. 10. —(William Boucher)

NO ANSWER

"This business of taking people into hospital and then leaving them in bed or propping them up in a chair just isn't the answer," says Mr. Heaton. "I know it is easier on the staff."

"The patient feels that he is at the end of the road when he goes to a rest home. He says to himself, 'I've come here to die.'"

Then it isn't long before he does die.

GONE HOME

"Not long ago he had a woman in her 70s in the hospital. She hadn't walked in three years. They got her walking and she has gone home now."

Average age of the men in the hospital is 80.7 years (one man is in his 20s and another in his 30s) and for the women it's 81.2 years, says the administrator.

GRAVE ROUTE

As the oldsters begin to realize they are not on a fast downhill route to the grave, they respond amazingly.

"Their competitive spirit comes to life," says Mr. Heaton. "They say to themselves, 'If that old greaser can drop that rubber ball in the basket—then I can.'"

OUTLOOK CHANGES

"Or, 'If she can raise her arm that high—then I can do it, too.'"

"They begin to sleep and eat better and their outlook changes completely," Mr. Heaton explained.

They might be cheered to know the beds they take could have become available by the recovery and discharge of the former occupant—not by his death.

Peterson

'Examination' Passed With Flying Colors

Education Minister Peterson passed an examination in French Friday.

He addressed a touring group of deputies of the French National Assembly in their own language, and was made an honorary member of the assembly.

"He speaks French like a Frenchman," said interpreter Paul Tardif, Liberal MP for Russell, following a luncheon in the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Peterson fingered a finely-wrought gold star signifying that he is one of only 20 honorary French deputies in the world.

"I'm more than honored," he said as he guided the party on a tour of the Legislative Buildings.

Then he quipped:

Douglas to Probe Veteran's Case

A disabled Victoria war veteran who claims he was wrongfully dismissed from his job at HMC Dockyard in 1963, has received a promise that national New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas will investigate his case.

C. A. Billett, 404 Sherb Street, said Friday he had received a letter from Mr. Douglas which stated, "... On the face of it, you appear to have had a very raw deal and I shall be very glad to take your case up with the minister of national defence."

Youth Gets Jail For Theft Try

An Ontario youth who tried to rob pay telephones in Goldstream Park and Nanaimo has been sentenced to the young offenders' unit at Oakalla.

Colwood RCMP said charges are pending against him "for similar offences committed across Canada."

CASE RAISED

James Rudolf Assef, 17, of Windsor, pleaded guilty in Colwood RCMP court Thursday to four charges involving highway pay telephones. His case was raised from juvenile court.

He will serve concurrent sentences of one year definite and six months indefinite.

TWO COUNTS

Assef was charged with two counts of attempted theft at Nanaimo and Goldstream Park and two charges of theft in the Penticon area.

Assef plundered the Penticon area telephones of more than $100.

Aug. 10, the B.C. Telephone Company was notified that someone was trying to break open the pay telephone at Goldstream Park.

Colwood RCMP caught Assef before he was able to return to his car.

CRIME INCREASE

Magistrate William Ashby told Assef, "The alarming increase of this type of offence in recent months cannot be condoned."

"We are indeed fortunate the telephone companies have provided these pay telephones for the use of the general public."

"I hope that actions like these will not discourage them."

Injured Man Still Critical

A 76-year-old Victoria pedestrian remained in critical condition Friday in Royal Jubilee Hospital's intensive care ward after being struck by a car Thursday.

James M. Watson, 1569 Pembroke, suffered a broken leg, head injuries, cuts and multiple bruises when he was struck by a car.

Her outfit was a white three-piece double-knit suit, trimmed with white feathered hat, plumage accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bride, Betty Lorraine Baird, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Baird, 987 Easter Road, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hansen, 2325 Graham Street.

Baskets of pink gladiolus and red and white carnations decorated St. John's Anglican Church for the ceremony at which Canon George Biddle officiated.

"O Perfect Love" was sung by Mrs. T. M. Claridge during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Maurice F. Gurney, the bride wore a floor-length gown of Ligada, styled with a full train extending from a bridal bow at the back waistline. The bodice featured a princess neckline and lily point sleeves and the sheath skirt was highlighted with a panel of Swiss Guipure lace.

A floral rosette, starred with crystals, held her tiered veil of silk illusion net and she carried a bouquet of red roses, white stephanotis and lily.

Mrs. P. Garside was matron marked with white ribbons by Douglas Watt, Port Alberni, and Robert Messerschmidt.

Best man was Philip Garside. Guests were ushered to pews

Maurice Gurney proposed the toast to the bride at the reception following in the Carlton Club. A three-tier wedding cake, surrounded with arrangements of pink gladiolus and white asters, centred the bride's table. Mrs. T. Davies sang "O Promise Me."

The couple will make their home in Victoria.

Newlyweds Make Home in Haney

Now making their home in Haney, B.C., are Mr. John Forrest Grant and his bride, the former Joan Lowe Ripley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ripley, Vancouver. The groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Gordon H. Grant, 3470 Upper Terrace.

Following their marriage in the Church of St. John the Apostle, Vancouver, the couple took a motor trip through the Caribou. Rev. N. S. Defoe officiated at the nuptial mass.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in an elegant gown of white peau de soie featuring lace appliques at the neckline. The floor-length, skirt fell into a chapel train in back and her mantilla style veil in chantilly lace swept to the floor. She carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias.

Miss Nancy Colbert, maid of honor, Mrs. Jack Giles and Mrs. Brian Skahan, bridesmaids, were crowned alike in wedgwood blue silk style gowns and carried sheaf bouquets of deep pink roses.

Mr. D'Arcy McGee of Victoria was best man. Guests were ushered to their pews by Mr. Jack Giles, Mr. Peter Grant, Mr. Charles Boas and Mr. Brian Skahan.

A reception followed at Hyatt, University Women's Club.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE FARMER

Party Arranged Long Distance

Caterers bearing all the trimmings for a party called at the Burnside Road home of Mr. and Mrs. George Farmer on Wednesday evening and following close behind were some 14 guests. It was Mr. Farmer's 80th birthday and the party was a complete surprise to him.

The birthday party was arranged long distance by the couple's two daughters, Mrs. Mel (Frances) Howey of London, Ont., and Mrs. W. L. (Laura) Walkins of Hudson's Bay, Sask. They had invited the guests by mail and several days before the big event Mrs. Howey telephoned from her home in London to the Victoria catering firm to make arrangements for the party.

Mr. Farmer, who was born in London, England, has been a resident of Victoria since 1908. He met his wife, the former Dorothy Rudd, here and was married in 1929. Mr. Farmer was a member of the Victoria Fire Department for 32 years retiring in 1945. Well known for his singing he is a member of St. John's Anglican Church choir and also the Twilight Singers.

Carol Hewison Feted At Round of Parties

Miss Carol Hewison has been guest of honor at a round of parties given by her many friends prior to her marriage today to Mr. Christon Archer.

Mrs. J. G. Wallace and Miss Roxie Wilson were co-hostesses at a linen shower at which the bride-elect's sister, Miss Gail Hewison presented the gifts from a decorated wishing well.

Carnation corsages were presented to the honored guest, her mother, Mrs. J. Hewison and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. J. Archer of Cowichan Station. Other guests were Mrs. J. Davies, Mrs. C. Lawson, Mrs. K. Alexander, Mrs. J. Randall, Mrs. Comberford, Mrs. D. Gregory of Duncan and the Misses Dianne Hewison, Anne Wallace, Barbara Davies and Jill Pearson.

Miss Gillian Pearson entertained at a miscellaneous shower in her Daphne Street home in honor of Miss Hewison. Gifts were concealed in a decorated umbrella.

Guests were Mrs. R. Pearson, Mrs. J. Hewison, Mrs. W. McKay, Mrs. A. Dokken and the Misses Roxie Wilson, Joanna Curtis, Barbara Piercy, Dianne and Gail Hewison.

A tea honoring Miss Carol

Hewison was held recently at the Donald Street home of Mrs. P. Clarke. An attractive crystal bowl and corsage were presented to the bride-elect by her fellow employees.

Other guests were the Misses Gloria Davidson, Karen Thompson and Jan Laidlaw.

A pink chenille bedspread was presented to the bride-elect at a bridal shower given by Mrs. A. Plows and Mrs. J. Ozard.

Carnation corsages were received by Miss Hewison, her mother and the groom-elect's aunt, Miss Kathleen Johnson. Invited guests were Mrs. V. Rolfe, Mrs. C. Palliser, Mrs. C. Blackbourn, Mrs. L. Watson, Mrs. P. W. Richards, Mrs. C. Blackwell, Mrs. P. Green, Mrs. J. Archer, Mrs. D. Statham, Mrs. D. Besley, Mrs. D. Gregory and the Misses Dianne and Gail Hewison.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas F. Pearce, 891 Fullerton Avenue, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Lynda Diane, to Mr. Terence Joel Martin, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Martin, 7003 Grant Road, Sooke. The wedding will take place at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 10, in St. John's Anglican Church with Dr. John Sandys-Wunch officiating.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Am I big-hearted or do I have the word sucker written all over my face?

There are eleven houses on this block but everybody who wants to borrow a cup of sugar or an aspirin rings my bell. The lady next door is married to a man who can buy and sell my husband 10 times over, yet she has been using my washing machine for three weeks.

The man across the street had trouble getting his car started. Of all the places he could have gone for help he picked me. (Yes, I'm a strong woman, but wouldn't you have thought he'd ask a man to help him?) Well, Ann, I have pushed his car every day for two weeks. Yesterday I said, "Look I'm pushing you today for the last time. Get a new battery and leave me alone." Boy he is mad.

Am I an oddball to resent this? I don't ask my neighbors for the time of day. Please give me some advice. — THE MAGNET.

Dear Mag: There's a vast difference between lending a neighbor an aspirin and pushing a man's car every day for two weeks. If you don't know the difference, then you are an oddball.

Each person must decide for himself how far he will let friends and neighbors go. You've let yours go too far, Petunia.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband, who is 41, has had a serious liver problem for over seven years. This last year it has become much worse.

The doctor told Jack in 1959 that he must give up alcohol if he wants to live. I have threatened to leave him. I've cried, and even gotten down on my knees and begged him to leave liquor alone, but I might as well talk to the lamp post.

Two weeks ago Jack had an acute attack and had to be rushed to the hospital. I thought surely it would kill or cure him. Lord knows how he pulled through.

Jack has been home from the hospital three days and is feeling much better. Tonight before supper he fixed himself a martini. Now he's on his fourth and told me to skip his dinner. Why would a man do this when his doctor has told him it adds up to suicide? — DESPONDENT WIFE.

Dear Wife: Because he is an alcoholic. And alcoholics want to kill themselves but they'd rather use a bottle than a gun.

Dear Ann Landers: I always knew there was something extraordinary about me but I didn't know what to call it until I read some books on extra-sensory perception. I have it.

When I wake up in the morning I can feel when I'm going to receive a letter. I can often tell within seconds that the phone is going to ring. I've walked down the street and thought of someone I hadn't seen in months, and within minutes I've bumped into that person.

Several weeks ago I said to my father, "The market is awfully high. It's going down soon." The next day it really took a dive.

I'm dating a very fine man. I've only gone out with him four times but I know I'm going to marry him. Do you think I should tell him? Would it hurt or help the romance? — JANUS.

Dear Janus: I've only got five senses and sometimes I'm not too sure of them so I'm in no position to give advice to someone who can predict what's going to happen to the stock market.

I don't think it's smart to tell a man you're going to marry him until he asks you — with or without E.S.P.

CHILLED CREAM OF TUNA SOUP

Two tbsps. butter, 2 tbsps. of sliced green onion, 1/4 cup of chopped celery, 2 tbsps. flour, 3 cups instant nonfat dry milk crystals (relieved according to directions) 1 can (6 1/2 to 7 oz.) tuna, drained, 1 tbsp. of capers (optional), 1 tbsp. chopped pimiento, 4 tps. lemon juice, salt to taste, 6 lemon wedges and parsley, for garnish.

Melt butter in saucepan. Add onion and celery; cook until crisp-tender. Remove onion and celery (leaving butter in saucepan) and set aside. Blend flour into melted butter. Over medium heat, gradually stir in two cups of the relieved instant crystals. Bring to boil; boil one minute, stirring constantly. Chill. In electric blender, combine remaining relieved instant crystals, onion, celery, tuna, capers, pimiento and the lemon juice. Blend until smooth. Stir into chilled mixture. Salt to taste. Chill thoroughly. Garnish.

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

The restoration and rejuvenation of Centennial Square goes ahead day by day and you notice this or that without bothering too much.

Then suddenly the picture has a complete change. Such as the old Westholme Hotel. Weeks and weeks, one has seen the M.P. Paine Construction sign out front and you note with approval the changing face of the old hotel. Now its just getting a few finishing touches and is blossoming out under a new name, Centennial Inn.

On the main floor there is a brand new dining room with Turkish murals and gold etched mirrors on the walls, the cocktail lounge follows the same softly lighted, All Baha atmosphere.

One of the busiest places in the new inn, just inside the main entrance, now from Pandora, is the little art gallery that Norma MacDonald is setting up.

Was down there a couple of days ago and watched Norma and sister, Frances sorting out the art treasures while men on ladders were hanging this and that. There were pictures everywhere, on the walls on the floor, wherever you looked. No doubt, knowing the business like way Norma MacDonald operates, everything is ship shape by now and they are probably in business, as the saying goes.

There are pictures from all over the world. Norma has been collecting on her travels since she closed her antique shop in 1958. England, Scotland, South America, Italy.

Going to Saskatoon

This holiday weekend will see a lot of coming and going.

Leaving Tuesday for her new job in Saskatoon will be Maureen Usher daughter of Fred and Doris.

Maureen has been working in the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and has a transfer to the prairie city where she is looking forward to jobs of snow and learning to ski.

Back to Ottawa

Richard Starnberg who has been visiting his grandparents here, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Starnberg, will shortly be entering Carleton University in Ottawa.

Holiday at Banff

Mrs. John M. Cullingford was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Marshall P. Harding of Seattle when they holidayed at Banff.

Visit Grandparents

After a visit to their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lloyd Morgan, the Misses Erica, Gretchen and Heidi Morgan have returned to their home in Seattle.

Few Days Here

Prof. and Mrs. F. G. C. Wood have gone back to Vancouver after a few days here when they were house guests of University of Victoria Chancellor and Mrs. J. B. Cleghorne.

Prof. Wood, a native of Victoria who started his teaching career here, was for many years on the faculty at the University of British Columbia and the Freddie Wood Theatre is named for him.

France, East Germany, Red China, Korea and Japan are all represented.

As Norma says there are no really big names in her collection. The most valuable painting is a Fouyita, a Japanese artist living in Paris. Fouyita is 86 now and recently embraced the Roman Catholic faith, taking the name of Leonardo after the great artist.

The largest painting framed in gold leaf measures 7 feet by 5 feet. It is a winter scene by Joseph Farquharson of Inverness and bears the title The Silent Snow Possessed the Earth.

Then there is the work of Clyde Seavey, the American artist who specializes in old mansions with figures dressed in the costume of the time. One different picture is the New York Skyline in gold leaf, the favorite medium of another American, Goldet.

Since her trips to the Orient, you feel Norma rather favors the art of these lands. Only back three months ago from a trip to Korea, Japan and China she will be leaving again in October for the same countries in search of more art for her gallery.

Norma has a plan to specialize in Celadon, 12th century pottery excavated in Korea and China. She was expecting a shipment the afternoon I was there. Where they were going to put it, I wouldn't know.

coffee party as a sort of farewell to her friends. At the party were Diana MacNaught, Pam Watson, Barbara Helsterman, Margot Adams, Beverly Peters, Hilary Dawkins, Joanne Cunniff, Gail Rawnsley, Wendy Lovitt, Mary Kendrick, Val Bennett, Mrs. G. MacNaught, Mrs. J. Watson, Mrs. C. Helsterman, Mrs. E. Peters, Mrs. A. Zala, Mrs. R. Rawnsley, Mrs. J. Andrews, Mrs. W. Minty and Mrs. G. Usher.

Richard is the son of Mr. Peter Starnberg, noted newspaperman and radio commentator who started his career in Victoria and Mrs. Starnberg of Ottawa.

at Banff. They were also in Calgary to see Mrs. Cullingford's daughter, Patricia who works in the Bank of Montreal there.

Erica, Gretchen and Heidi Morgan have returned to their home in Seattle.

years on the faculty at the University of British Columbia and the Freddie Wood Theatre is named for him. In a few months, he and his wife, a daughter of a former Lieutenant Governor, the late J. W. Fordham Johnson (1931-36) will leave for their winter home at Laguna Beach in California.

Mrs. Leslie Peterson, left, wife of the minister of education, gave a luncheon yesterday for Mme. Paul Tardif, wife of the MP for Russell, Ont., Mme. Jean Priou, wife of the secretary of the French National Assembly, and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, wife of the premier. Mme. Priou accompanied her husband, a member of the French parliamentary group making tour of Canadian cities; M. and Mme.

Tardif flew from the east with the visitors and will be with them when they stop in Vancouver, Calgary, Banff and other places. Following the luncheon yesterday, Mrs. Peterson took Mme. Priou and Mme. Tardif on a tour of the Legislative Buildings. This morning they will be driven out to Butchart's Gardens and other places of interest.

Mrs. J. Percy Page, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta, is spending a quiet holiday here with old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. MacDonald, Redwood Avenue. The MacDonalds came here from Edmonton not quite a year ago and moved into their home, The House of All Seasons, last November. Mrs. Page will leave Victoria next Wednesday.

Bride-Elect Judith Verchere Entertained at Shower

Mrs. K. Houston and Mrs. M. Renaud entertained at a bridal shower in the former's McLellan Street home in honor of Miss Judith Verchere.

A corsage of red roses was presented to the bride-elect and carnations to her mother, Mrs. A. Verchere and mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. C. West.

A buffet style luncheon was served and a cake iced with "Showers of Happiness Judy" centred the refreshment table.

Other guests were Mrs. S. Bennett, Mrs. R. West, Mrs. A. Politano, Mrs. M. Houston, Mrs. L. Houston, Mrs. T. Hook, Mrs. I. Goddard, Mrs. M. McMillan, Mrs. I. Brunt, Mrs. P. Pye, Mrs. H. Patch and the Misses Jean Houston, Vicki Politano and Kit Bennett.

Pre-War Star Returns

She'll Make TV Series in Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "To them I seemed like a diamond on the counter—a diamond that suddenly sprouted legs and walked away."

This was Luise Rainer's reflection upon returning to MGM, from which she departed summarily 26 years ago. During her comet-like three years in films, she collected two Oscars—for The Great Ziegfeld and The Good Earth—and created a harvest of legends.

QUITE A SAGA

"Yes, my story has become quite a saga," she said with a wry smile on her lovely Viennese face. "I am amazed by some of the stories I hear—but no one enjoys them more than I."

For 10 years Miss Rainer has lived in London with her publisher husband, Robert Knittel, and their daughter, now 19. The Knittels were pursuing their hobby of mountain climbing in the Dolomites when a message came urging her to consider returning to Hollywood to play in ABC's Combat series.

LIKED SCRIPT

The script caught up with her in Venice, she liked it, and the journey fitted into her plans. Only after she arrived did she learn that she was to film the television show on the lot where she had spent her entire film career.

The return brought forth a flood of memories and no regrets. "My life is my life, the heart-aches as well as the joys," Miss Rainer declared. "I would have it no different."

NO SECRET

Why did she leave MGM? Stories of her temperament have long been circulated, and she admitted that she was difficult—but with a reason.

"I was very young and headstrong—I was only 23," she commented, "and it is no secret that I was undergoing emotional problems."

GOT DIVORCED

"I was married to Clifford Odets at the time and he was a wonderful man but he should not have been married. During the time we were undergoing the divorce, I was pregnant and knew I was losing the baby and I was working all the while."

Miss Rainer said her contract called for six months of making two films, then six months for stage work. But during her last six-month period, she was forced to make Toy Wife, Dramatic School and The Great Waltz. Since the latter was almost totally remade, she had worked in the equivalent of four films in six months.

"So I left," she said. "I simply walked out, went to the south of France and helped get 700 orphans out of Spain during the civil war."

Over the years she has been intermittently active on the stage and in television. But she never returned to films.

LONDON (CP) — Associated Television Ltd. says its investments in Canadian television now are "soundly profit-making" after early losses.

ATV, one of the four major British commercial program companies, has financial interests in CIBC-TV Halifax and British Columbia Television Broadcasting System Ltd. which owns CHAN-TV Vancouver, and CHEK-TV Victoria.

Jack Gill, financial director of ATV, declined Thursday to say how much money his company has invested in Canadian commercial television. He described holdings in the three stations as "substantial," while under 25 per cent in each case, and said ATV has a small interest in the CTV network.

Lord Renwick, ATV chairman, said in his annual report for the year ended last April 4 that profit before tax was the second highest in the firm's 10-year history at £5,522,348 ($16,567,041).

ATV, in company with 12 other firms, provides programs for British commercial television operated by the Independent Television Authority. ATV operates in the rich London viewing area Saturdays and Sundays and in the Midlands region weekdays.

Nurse Sorry to Leave

By HAL BOYLE

NHA TRANG, Viet Nam (AP) — She was close to tears.

It was the last day on duty for Lieut. Julie Klebaum, 24, of Wapato, Wash., one of seven American nurses at the 8th U.S. Army field hospital.

She was going home after a year here, a year in which some 5,500 ailing, injured and wounded men went through the hospital.

PERSONALITY

Julie is five-feet-three and has dark hair, blue-green eyes and a nice figure. She would be called pretty in any part of the world, but it is her friendly, outgoing personality that has made her a favorite here.

As one of seven American women among several thousand men, Lieut. Klebaum naturally received a flattering amount of male attention.

"You become a combined mother, wife, sister and girl friend," she said, laughing. "They all want you to help them shop for things for their women back home.

"It's an honor in a way. It's a very unusual position, one I've never been in before. The men are interested in you first because you are around, second because you speak English and only third because you're an American girl. But they're great. They'll do anything for you."

BE FEMININE

Back home nurses aren't supposed to wear perfume on duty. "But we all do here," said Julie.

"The patients want us to. They also want us to wear lipstick and nail polish. They want us to look very feminine. To them we're the idealization of American women because they don't see any others."

The nurses work a 12-hour day or longer six days a week. "I've helped nurse everybody from a Vietnamese baby with tuberculosis to GIs with worms, malaria, dengue fever, appendicitis and gunshot wounds."

volved in the condition of their patients—to give them empathy but no sympathy.

"That's impossible here," said Julie flatly. "These men are under terrible strain. They need someone they can talk to who will give them human understanding."

MOST UPSETTING

The case that most upset her was a pilot about 30 whose abdomen was riddled by ground fire.

"He stayed at the controls for half an hour until he got his plane back," she said. "He died so well. He knew he was dying but he wouldn't give up."

"He wrote a letter to his wife. He joked. He shouldn't have lived even to land that plane. He talked about being operated on the next morning, but there was nothing that could be done for him."

"He lived 20 hours. He died just before daybreak and was alert until 15 minutes before the end. He never got to see the sun come up. I never saw a braver man."

U.S. Nests of Power in Viet Nam

Base Building Program Indicates Long Battle

CAM RANH BAY, South Viet Nam (AP)—This little far off war is becoming bigger every day.

One sign that the United States is preparing for a long campaign is the extensive chain of bases it is building along the indented scimitar of South Viet Nam's lengthy east coast.

The bases range from Vung Tau, near Saigon, to Da Nang, 380 miles to the northeast.

Such giant nests of power are not the product of an idle hour, nor are they stopgap improvisations. They take months to plan, months to complete.

They take the work of hundreds of machines, thousands of men, and millions of pounds of fuel and supplies—all the endless items necessary to sustain a modern military machine.

CHAIN OF BASES
The latest of this chain of bases is at this deep water bay slightly more than one-third of the distance from Saigon to Da Nang. It can harbor some of the world's largest ships.

Both the Japanese and the French recognized the strategic position of the port," said Capt. Lindbergh Jones, 37, of Leesville, La. "The Japanese built fortifications and ammunition dumps during the Second World War, and this is one of the last places the French pulled out of after the battle of Dien Bien Phu in 1954.

STRATEGICALLY PLACED
A look at the map shows why the base site attracted army strategists. The peninsula jangles in the sea like a wavy finger 22 miles southeast of Nha Trang, a popular coastal resort.

Surrounded on three sides by water, its narrow neck could be easily defended in case of trouble in the mid-part of the country. Equally well, it could serve as a major marshalling point by the U.S. army in launching an attack in the central area.

The army is building a new 4,500-foot airstrip and lengthening a small one left by the French. In addition there is plenty of room for another major airfield—if the U.S. air force finds it requires one here.

The peninsula is a sandy waste carpeted with scrub growth interspersed with dunes that make it look in places like the Arabian desert.

Huge bulldozers are leveling the dunes as if they were molehills. Under the hot sun, sweating engineering troops move heavy equipment across gnarled roads. The work goes on night and day with an occasional pause for a dip in the sea.

Said Capt. Jones: "In three months the base should be in fine shape."

Overage Stewardesses

Airliners Not Flying Bunny Clubs

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—The cause of allegedly overage flight stewardesses who are retired in their 30s were taken up Thursday by some doughty knights of Congress.

The setting was the meeting of a House of Representatives labor subcommittee which, hitherto, has been considering the problems of older workers such as middle-aged salesmen, factory hands and others.

But Thursday Representative James H. Scheuer, of New York, looked over the committee room and called to the dozens or more stewardesses in the committee room: "Stand up, so we can see the dimensions of the problem."

Portuguese Dog Defeats Army
OPORTO, Portugal (UPI)—The Portuguese army has admitted defeat—by a dog. The animal belongs to new recruit Jose Da Silva and refuses to leave his side, even on parade.

Representative Scheuer and his colleagues were told that the airlines have policies calling for stewardesses to resign at 32 in some cases, 35 in others.

"If this isn't discrimination on account of age, what is?" asked Representative Barratt O'Hara, of Illinois, the chairman.

Asked why the airlines put their stewardesses out to pasture in their 30s, Miss Boland read a newspaper article quoting an airline executive as saying: "It's the sex thing. Put a dog on an airplane, and 20 businessmen are sore for a month."

This prompted Representative William Hathaway, of Maine, to remark: "They need to be educated to the fact that they're not operating flying bunny clubs, but just another means of transportation."

Colleen Boland, a trim 37, was the spokesman for the girls. She is president of the Airline Stewards and Stewardesses Union.

Scheuer advised the airlines to refer to Benjamin Franklin's letter to his son exhorting him to court middle-aged women.

Franklin noted that their feminine allure and sensitivity were enhanced, as in vintage wine," said Scheuer. "Perhaps this letter should be distributed to the airlines."

Winnipeg (CP)—The African Ballet opened a two-day engagement here Friday night with indications that it might face indecent exhibition charges apparently dispelled.

Women dancers of the troupe appeared bare-breasted in three numbers before an audience of about 1,500, but a police spokesman said before the show his department was not contemplating any charges.

The spokesman said the dancers were as acceptable in Winnipeg as they had been in other Canadian cities. The ballet performed in Calgary before coming to Winnipeg and was not prosecuted.

Eyewitness Report on Kashmir Fighting

By DONALD SEAMAN

CHAMB, Kashmir Front Line—A black cloud of vultures flapped obscenely in the air, waiting impatiently to feast on the newly dead. Field guns hastily camouflaged in a field of maize thundered a barrage that stunned the ears.

Rome Faces Flood

ROME (UPI)—Three days of heavy rains Friday pushed the Tiber River to about triple its normal level, threatening Rome with a major flood. Pope Paul VI was reported planning an unprecedented visit to flood victims in the city.

The death toll rose to 48, with 27 persons missing, in the storms and flooding that have hit Italy from the Austrian border to Sicily. The muddy, debris-filled Tiber, which passes through the center of Rome, was measured at 43 feet.

RETAINING WALLS
If it rises a few feet it could break through retaining walls and cause a major disaster.

(Torrential end-of-summer rains today flooded parts of London and southern England, disrupted railroad service to the suburbs and caused 10-mile traffic jams on the road to Dover.)

(The Mall, a broad avenue leading to Buckingham Palace at one time was under 18 inches of water. Heavy flooding was reported at Ipswich, 70 miles northeast of London.)

WAVE BUILDS UP
Rome city engineers said "a wave has built up from heavy rains" at Orte, 40 miles upstream from Rome.

"This wave, when it hits Rome, will mark the crest and if the river does not overflow then the danger is past," one official said.

The 2,000-year-old Ponte Milvio Bridge spanning the Tiber was closed to traffic and authorities were considering shutting down some of the 13 other bridges across the historic river.

Trim, After Losing 40 Pounds

Khrushchev Survives Bout of Pneumonia

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nikita S. Khrushchev has beaten an attack of pneumonia during which he lost 40 pounds but his doctors consider him in "fair" health for a man of 71, informed sources said Friday.

The ousted former Soviet premier has been undergoing a routine medical checkup at a Moscow hospital for the past two weeks and probably

DUST PLUME
Choked and blinded by 50-foot high plumes of dust thrown up by racing tanks carrying squads of laughing, exultant Pakistani infantry, the pursuit of the defeated Indian troops in South Kashmir went on all through the day.

I rode in a jeep with them, the first newspaper correspondent in the world to file an eyewitness account of the heavy fighting now raging on the southern front here.

TAXI RIDE
I set off in the early hours by taxi and reported to Pakistani divisional headquarters near the ludicrously named "cease fire line" to hitch a lift with the pursuing Pakistani regulars and Azad (free) Kashmiri troops.

As we jolted along the brutal route that leads to the front-line country, temperature on the 100 mark, with the air thick as a London pea-souper with dust — Indian Vampire jet fighter-bombers attacked to try and halt the advance.

AIR ATTACK
It was their second strike in as many days — and the second time they failed to halt the advance. Pakistani air force Starfighters swooped out of the sun and shot down three, and forced a fourth to crash-land.

The pilot was taken prisoner. The position in Kashmir Friday night was this:

BREAKTHROUGH
While Indian attacks in the North and Central Sectors have been halted or repulsed, the Pakistani and Kashmiri irregulars in their flowing robes and turbans have achieved a major breakthrough in the foothills of the south.

This is still an unofficial, undeclared war. But my estimate of the total numbers involved on both sides here on the southern front alone is at least 30,000 men.

Friday's offensive is aimed at cutting at vital Srinagar-Jammu road, the only road and the only supply route linking India proper to her army stationed in Kashmir.

ARTILLERY
The battle was at its height when I met with the advancing Pakistanis Friday morning. When it began the Indians had eight battalions of Sikhs and Dogras holding the front, backed by an armored brigade using Patton tanks and a regiment of artillery—say 15,000 men, all with supporting arms.

Friday night they are all broken, in full flight, with the Pakistanis and Kashmiris 20 miles inside the Indian "fortress" and going hell for leather towards the Srinagar road.

BRUTAL RIDE
After a brutal bone-jolting ride—it took me three hours to cover 15 miles—we crossed the "cease-fire line" to the front line.

We passed burned out Indian tanks in flattened maize fields, guns pointing lifelessly to the sky. The vultures were everywhere, wheeling overhead or lined-up in hideous array out-

Hour of Crisis Shastri Warns Of Air Raids: Hard Days Ahead

NEW DELHI (CP)—Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said in a sombre speech Friday night an "hour of serious crisis" is upon India and it may have to suffer damage from Pakistani air raids.

The prime minister spoke in a countrywide radio broadcast at the end of a tense day in which India claimed its forces shot down two Pakistani jet fighters and advanced in ground fighting in Southwest Kashmir.

INDIA BLAMED
But in Rawalpindi, the new capital of Pakistan, that country's foreign minister, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, blamed India for the latest eruption of the fighting in Kashmir.

Bhutto said Friday that if India wants to stage a war against Pakistan, "it will be unleashing a tragedy of the greatest magnitude—a tragedy which will spell devastation."

COMMONWEALTH
Elsewhere, especially in Commonwealth capitals, desperate efforts were being made to avert a war between the two countries.

Prime Minister Pearson offered his immediate services to bring about a ceasefire.

From London, Prime Minister Wilson sent personal messages to both Shastri and President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

PROTEST TO U.S.
India declared Pakistan never would have dared to attack in Kashmir without planes and tanks furnished by the United States. It sent Washington a protest against Pakistan's use of U.S. war material.

Pakistan is a member of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. India has no military alliances.

Shastri said he is calling on his 480,000,000 people "to rise" to join the home guards, increase defence production and preserve communal peace between Hindus and Muslims.

U.S. Worried!

By ARCH MACKENZIE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The latest fighting between India and Pakistan points up a hazard created when major powers shower arms on smaller ones with trigger tempers.

India formally protested Friday that Pakistan has turned American tanks and Sabre jet fighters against her—contrary to the declaration made in 1954 by then-President Eisenhower.

The U.S. in the last 10 years has given Pakistan some $1,200,000,000 worth of military aid to be used against any Communist aggression. Britain and Russia have supplied India with assorted military hardware while India has received more than $5,000,000,000 worth of economic help from the U.S. but little military aid.

Pakistan tanks are superior to the creaking British models in India's arsenal or some Second World War Sherman models purchased from the U.S. Sabre jets are less obsolete too than the British Vampires used initially by India.

But just what the U.S. can do at this point to slap Pakistan's wrist is hard to guess.

In more ways than one, this fresh eruption about an old border sore has put pressure on the U.S.

Pakistan Using Jets And Tanks

What concerns American and other diplomats is the large-scale operations and the apparent national tensions in each country, compared with the fighting earlier this year over the Rann of Kutch.

Picket Lines Set As Militia Prowls

NATCHEZ, Miss. (UPI)—Civil Rights leaders established picket lines in Negro neighborhoods Friday to enforce an economic "blackout" in this city where armed National Guardsmen patrol the streets to maintain racial peace.

Squads of guardsmen with unsheathed bayonets and helmets drove through the city making reconnaissance maps and noting potential trouble spots and places where snipers could hide.

China Challenges U.S.

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters)—China Friday challenged the United States to send troops "the more the better" to fight a war on the Asian mainland and warned it would annihilate them and "even give you receipts."

The challenge, coupled with new attacks on "Khrushchev revisionists" who fear nuclear war, came in a 70,000-word ar-

'Send Troops to Asia, We'll Annihilate Them'

Article by Lin Piao, Chinese vice-premier and defence minister. Lin claimed the United States is "in danger of being swamped" in Viet Nam and said the war there shows that "what the Vietnamese people can do, the people in other parts of the world can do, too." He said conditions now are more favorable than ever before for waging "people's war" against the U.S. and he promises increasing Chinese aid for such wars as the country grows stronger.

"If you want to send troops, go ahead, the more the better. We will annihilate as many as you can send, and can even give you receipts."

The Chinese official said China wants to tell the U.S. "once again, that the vast ocean of several hundred million Chinese people in arms will be more than enough to submerge your few million aggressor troops."

"Our attitude toward imperialist wars of aggression has always been clear-cut. First, we are against them, and secondly, we are not afraid of them."

"Taking the entire globe, if North America and Western Europe can be described as the cities of the world, then Asia, Africa and Latin America constitute the rural areas of the world."

He said socialist countries "should regard it as their international duty to support the people's revolutionary struggles in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

Mediation Bid

Pearson Addles Election

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson threw a curve ball at the nation's election bettors Friday with his offer of personal mediation in the Kashmir dispute.

Opposition critics have branded the offer as proof that Mr. Pearson has in effect "turned chicken" on a fall election. But the prime minister's executive assistant, Richard O'Hagan told newsmen that the mediation offer and a fall election are not "mutually exclusive" ideas.

Some pundits here interpret the move as a sure sign the election is on. They reason that Mr. Pearson will use his peace proposal as a major campaign gimmick.

They also point out that campaigning from a distance might not hurt Mr. Pearson, who has proved himself weak on the hustings in the last two campaigns.

One thing is certain. The prime minister has heaped confusion on confusion. Canadians face a holiday weekend not knowing where they stand.

They will know Tuesday or Wednesday when the prime minister has promised a firm answer one way or another on the election.

Mr. Pearson's offer of personal mediation in the bloody India-Pakistan dispute is without precedent in Canadian history.

Mr. O'Hagan told newsmen the prime minister is willing to travel right to the trouble spot if asked. "He is willing to do whatever is necessary to get a ceasefire," Mr. O'Hagan said.

"In the middle of an election campaign?" a reporter asked. "What campaign?" Mr. O'Hagan retorted with a smile.

But on the way out of the press briefing Mr. O'Hagan indicated to newsmen that the mediation offer didn't rule out the possibility of the fall election.

His statement gave rise to speculation that Mr. Pearson, who won a Nobel Peace Prize for his peace-keeping solution to the Suez Crisis of 1956, may be bidding to retrieve his slipping international halo to win votes.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker branded the Pearson proposal as "a transparent device to escape the consequences of his ill-advised election threats and rash indulgence in electoral brinkmanship."

"The lamentable crisis between India and Pakistan is not of recent date. Up to now the government has shown only passing interest."

"The prime minister's sudden decision to intervene has the appearance of an escape hatch from the impasse in which the government finds itself."

"Second thoughts have brought home to him the undesirability of calling an election the result of which he fears," Mr. Diefenbaker said. His former agriculture minister.

Steel Strike Averted

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson announced Friday night that steel negotiators "have reached essential agreement" on a new contract that would erase the threat of a nationwide strike.

The president, who persuaded industry and union negotiators to move their talks to Washington last Monday and postpone a scheduled strike, did not disclose the basic terms of the settlement but said:

"The settlement is a fair one. It is squarely within the limits set by the national wage-price guidelines which are designed to prevent the inflation which would damage our prosperity. It is also within the guiding spirit of free collective bargaining."

Namu Good Business

By DALE NELSON

SEATTLE (AP)—Namu, the captive killer whale, has proved to be a good business proposition.

Ted and Jim Griffin, operators of the Seattle Marine Aquarium, say the whale has been profitable. "Our entire investment, including operating expenses, has been returned from admissions," adds Jim.

COST $10,000
"Before purchasing the whale, Ted estimated it would take $10,000 out of pocket," Griffin said. "The actual expenses ran considerably higher, but taking into account donations it came to exactly $10,000."

"As soon as we had Namu secured in the towing pen Ted had constructed, I contacted my lawyer and we formed a corporation, Nambu, Inc., to license manufacture of Namu items." Trade marks were registered for sweat shirts, toys, bar accessories and other novelties.

Students may enter at the start of any semester and attend for one, two or three semesters each calendar year.

Simon Fraser

Bold, Modern University Opens

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—Simon Fraser, Canada's first "Trimester" university Tuesday opens its Athenian halls of learning to some 2,000 students.

The University comprises an imposing group of grey-white buildings based on ancient Athens' Acropolis and Peru's

Inca ruins. They sit high atop Burnaby mountain, and overlook the blue Pacific.

Simon Fraser is an educational trail-blazer, not just physically and technically, but also academically.

The trimester system is considered a major advantage. The year is divided into three semesters of 16 weeks. They are Spring semester, January to April; Summer semester, May to August; and Fall semester, September to December.

Students may enter at the start of any semester and attend for one, two or three semesters each calendar year.

It was expected many students would choose to follow the traditional pattern and attend two semesters from September to April. Each student is free to determine the number of terms he will attend during any year.

Situated 10 miles east of downtown.

Hockey Season Set by Brass

COURTENAY—Regional hockey will be a top winter sport here this season, if officials who attended a recent meeting have their way.

They mapped plans for an exciting season of hockey for the area, in the Pacific Coast Amateur Hockey League.

The regular season schedule calls for 11 home games and 11 away games for Courtenay, to be followed by playoffs.

Home games will be played Tuesday, Friday and Saturday evenings, with four teams entered in the league.

QUALICUM BEACH—The 15th annual Salmon Derby, sponsored by Qualicum and District Fish and Game Club, will be held over the Labor Day weekend.

The derby will get under way at daybreak, Sept. 4, and will continue through until the afternoon of Sept. 6.

Prizes offered range from the cash prizes of $50 for the largest fish, $50 for the largest coho, and a $25 hidden weight prize to a hand-crafted leather handbag for the biggest fish to be caught by a lady, besides many merchandise prizes.

PORT ALBERNI—When Paul Paquette of Port Alberni applied his brakes suddenly to avoid a group of children who stepped into a crosswalk, the car behind plowed into his car causing $250 damage.

The accident occurred shortly after 8 p.m. Thursday, as Mr. Paquette crossed the Tenth Avenue fill.

When the children stepped out at Tenth and Dunbar, Mr. Paquette's car was struck by one driven by Edward Simpson of Port Alberni.

MAPLE BAY—This small resort community within North Cowichan municipality, about five miles east of Duncan, will be the scene of the Labor Day Regatta sponsored by Maple Bay Yacht Club today and Sunday.

Races will start at 11 a.m. today for six metres, Dragons, C class, Cal 20, Thunderbirds, Lightnings, 505, Hornets, Comets, Snipes, Enterprise, OK dinghies and Catamarans.

All these classes will also race during the afternoon, plus eight-metre boats. Sunday the races will start at 10 a.m.

Pickets Acquitted

COURTENAY—A charge of unlawfully loitering in a public place, the entrance of the RCMP station, laid against two members of Comox Project '65, was dismissed when Douglass Ross Robinson, 19, Quebec and Preston Donald Denny, 18, Ontario, appeared before Magistrate John Ryland.

The two were charged jointly and pleaded not guilty. RCMP officers told the court they had been notified peace pickets would be appearing at the police station, and one of the pair sat on a buttress at the side of the entrance to the station.

He was holding a sign. Police told the pair if they did not move they would be arrested.

NO OBSTRUCTION

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Harry Reddin, Sgt. Robert S. Rogers admitted there were no other persons in the vicinity, and that a large area of the steps was unobstructed.

The defence contended there was no unlawful loitering, as the purpose of the accused was quite evident, it was not unlawful to gather providing no disturbance was created, and that there was no evidence of any persons being obstructed from entering or leaving the police office.

RIGHT TO PROTEST

Mr. Reddin said the case involved fundamental liberties, that is the right to protest.

Magistrate Ryland said he was impressed by Mr. Reddin's defence, and agreed that evidence did not prove persons had been obstructed.

He said, "I think their actions were supremely futile, but that does not make it illegal."

William Heinrichs, charged with unlawfully supplying liquor to a minor, pleaded guilty and was fined $100.

Sportsmen's Park Opens

Marksmen Get Training Ground

ALBERNI—Dennis Haddleton, conservation officer for the Alberni Valley, says he is delighted with the progress the new Sportsmen's Park is making, and hopes it may be available for use by students taking a firearms safety program.

Last year a firearms safety program was conducted for Grade 7 boys at Maquinna School, the first such program in the valley under school board authorization. Thirty-two boys took part, and all passed with a 90 per cent average.

The conservation officer was one of the instructors of the school course, and found the boys full of enthusiasm.

"Actually, the course called for a certain number of hours practice on a .22 range, but last year that could not be arranged," said Mr. Haddleton.

But with the opening of Sportsmen's Park, it is hoped that other schools may take up the course this year, and that perhaps arrangements can be made to use the new park rifle range, through an arrangement with the sponsoring clubs. "It's a much needed project, this Sportsmen's Park," said Mr. Haddleton, "but I can't say I envy the clubs concerned. I only hope they get the support of all parents and other groups in the valley, and that the job won't be left entirely to the few hard-working sportsmen who have sparked the project."

Sportsmen's Park, on MacKenzie Road, off Beaver Creek Road, opens to the public today with a big barbecue, carnival and barrel contest.

Facilities include a rifle range, trout pond and picnic areas along the river front, with plans for a caretaker's cabin and club house to be built as soon as possible.

Walls Opens Comox Fair

COURTENAY—Comox Valley Fair, opened yesterday, will run until Monday night.

Charles Walls, manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture presided at the opening after taking part in a parade through downtown Courtenay.

Others present were Municipal Affairs minister Dan Campbell, Comox-Alberni MLA Tom Barnett, and the commanding officer of the RCMP base, Group Captain R. S. Turnbull.

Tonight while not officially part of fair activities, the weekend baseball tournament will kick off with a game between Courtenay Arbutus and the Old-Timers. The weatherman has promised good weather.

Indians Study Bridge Route

NANAIMO—The highways department has mapped out the planned new bridge in Cedar district across the Nanaimo River, and submitted the maps for Nanaimo Indians to consider.

The department finished staking out the routes Wednesday to enable the Indians to see exactly where the two locations are.

Chief Douglas White of the Nanaimo Indian band council said his people would consider the alternate routes.

Prize Rosettes New Export For Nanaimo

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO—In a workshop built onto the side of their house at North Wellington, Harold and Daphne Smith have benches covered with prize rosettes.

The Smiths have not won them—in fact, they are rosette and ribbon makers.

What started out as a hobby has grown over the last three years into a full-time business for Mr. Smith with occasional help from his wife and another assistant.

Many shades Mr. Smith built his workshop himself and the walls are lined with row upon row of brightly colored ribbons of every shade imaginable.

He has named the concern Creations in Ribbons and makes ribbons for every dog show in B.C. except two, and most of the major fairs.

He supplies just about every major show requiring ribbons in Saskatchewan, as well as sending some to Alberta.

PNE TOO BIG

So far the order travelling the longest distance went to a bird show in Essex, England.

He said he had to turn down both the PNE and the Calgary Stampede because they were too big to handle.

Mr. Smith, a retired nurse, learned this new trade by mail from a friend.

NEEDS PARTNER

"I got to the stage where people would not take no for an answer."

Getting sufficient help is now a major problem, and he is hoping a friend presently living in Hong Kong will come to his aid and become a partner.

Rosettes cost from 85 cents to $2.50 each, depending on the amount of money fair officials are prepared to spend.

EXPENSIVE TOOLS

Two kinds of ribbon are used, badge and florist, the former being the most expensive.

Although the end product may often be taken for granted at the fair, expensive equipment is involved in making the ribbons the prize winners receive.

GOLD LETTERS

Each Rosette has a button in the centre, and the Smiths Machine comes equipped with numerous dies to make differing sizes of buttons in a matter of minutes.

Mr. Smith does all his own lettering by running paper through a machine which stamps a gold impression on the ribbons.

An eyelet machine attaches a tag to the ribbon for the com-

SILK SCREEN

Often shows ask for two or three colored ribbons which Mr. Smith colors individually. A silk screen is placed over every ribbon and the required color painted on. They are then dried on racks.

Although most fairs are in the summer, Harold Smith is not idle for the rest of the year.

In winter he starts up his machinery, stockpiling as much as his storage space will allow in preparation for the summer rush.

SAANICH FAIR

At the present time Mr. Smith is at the height of the season. He delivered ribbons for the Saanich Fair, while the Cowichan Exhibition order is almost finished.

He still has 13 more shows lined up that have to be completed before the end of September.

"I will not let a thing go out of here unless it's perfect."

The Northwest International Horse Show, to be held in Vancouver, will be his next project, and by the end of the year he expects to use 15 miles of ribbon.

High School Delayed

By JOY HUNTLEY

CAMPBELL RIVER—School board officials heard a report this week that enrollment of newcomers to the school district on Monday alone equalled the total for a five-day period last week.

With the senior secondary school already arranging for shifts due to overcrowding and tenders being called for substantial additions to two elementary schools, an influx of new pupils could very well cause hardship to this rapidly expanding area.

Architect Morris Kenton reported further delays in the completion of the senior high school, which it was hoped could have been occupied by Oct. 1.

Sometime in November would be more realistic said Mr. Kenton.

LACK WORKERS

Subcontractors lack men for the work, perhaps due to other projects in the area and in Gold River, he said.

"Also some work is not being done according to specifications and must be re-done, which causes further delay," he added.

BRIGHT SIDE

On the bright side, report was heard the finishing of the new Arbutus school for retarded children was going smoothly and would be in readiness Sept. 7. Everything has been provided that the local chapter of the association has asked for, Mr. Sampson said.

The department of education has granted permission to call for tenders on new additions to Cedar and Maple schools and renovations to Manson Land school on Cortez Island.

Plans are available to contractors, with bids due Sept. 11 at 5:15 p.m.

NEW BUS A new 73-passenger bus is expected this week from Eastern Canada. Transport-maintenance foreman Jack Riley reported he was pleased with it after driving it to Vancouver.

'Solve Valley Problems'

Regional District Backed by Bishop

By MARY TAYLOR

ALBERNI—Mayor Fred Bishop says a regional district in the Alberni Valley would solve many problems now faced by the twin cities.

"Many problems are facing the urban area," said Mayor Bishop, "and a lot of these problems will only be solved by the municipal affairs department using what it calls an 'administrative vehicle', to permit unorganized areas to do things for themselves."

He said a regional district should definitely be in the future planning for the valley.

"I feel sure when representatives of the surrounding areas have the chance to study the benefits, they will all want to get into it," the mayor said.

"Comox-Courtenay area was the first to vote on a regional district, and it passed by about 80 per cent over-all."

It said a regional district

Cities Spark Plan

The idea of regional districts originated with the department of municipal affairs, but the mayor pointed out that city councils here seem destined to spark the discussion of the new scheme since there is no official voice in the surrounding unorganized territory.

It is hoped to set up a meeting of groups affected which would include Alberni and Port Alberni, Beaver Creek, Cherry Creek, Sproat Lake, Ucluelet, Tofino and Bamfield.

At a meeting last month, certain groups lacked representation because of the mail strike, which kept them from receiving notice of the event.

Meantime, it is hoped to set up what the mayor termed a "further study" committee, which will report its findings to the group as a whole.

Date for this group meeting has not yet been decided.

There are several areas in which a regional district system would be helpful, the mayor said.

The sewage problem, hospital expenditures, and the local ambulance service, with which no one appears entirely satisfied, are all matters in which unorganized territories would have a voice under the regional system.

It is hoped that when the next meeting is held to discuss the idea of regional district, organizers of the successful Comox-Courtenay regional district settlement will be on hand to lend the benefit of their experience.

"For instance, let us suppose the Beaver Creek area wanted some facility not useful to the city, then it could be provided with only those in that area contributing toward its cost. This would apply to any nearby area wishing a specific service."

The present absence of a hospital district, the mayor pointed out, leaves the surrounding area with no voice at all in hospital operation, expenditure or expansion.

"Morally, the hospital should be paid for on a common basis, since it is the only one in the area, and is in common use by all residents."

It is hoped that when the next meeting is held to discuss the idea of regional district, organizers of the successful Comox-Courtenay regional district settlement will be on hand to lend the benefit of their experience.

Fluoridation Fight Goes On

NANAIMO At last we agree on something," said Dr. Gerald Bonham, medical health officer, when he learned anti-fluoridationists favor a district-wide referendum.

Dr. Bonham said it is a fairer method of holding a plebiscite, because people outside city limits are also water-users.

He said a recent survey in Edmonton showed young families tended to support fluoridation and these families are more heavily concentrated in the outer areas.

Rome Faces Flood

ROME (UPI)—Three days of heavy rains Friday pushed the Tiber River to about triple its normal level, threatening Rome with a major flood. Pope Paul VI was reported planning an unprecedented visit to flood victims in the city.

The death toll rose to 48, with 27 persons missing, in the storms and flooding that have hit Italy from the Austrian border to Sicily. The muddy, debris-filled Tiber, which passes through the center of Rome, was measured at 43 feet.

RETAINING WALLS
If it rises a few feet it could break through retaining walls and cause a major disaster.

(Torrential end-of-summer rains today flooded parts of London and southern England, disrupted railroad service to the suburbs and caused 10-mile traffic jams on the road to Dover.)

(The Mall, a broad avenue leading to Buckingham Palace at one time was under 18 inches of water. Heavy flooding was reported at Ipswich, 70 miles northeast of London.)

WAVE BUILDS UP
Rome city engineers said "a wave has built up from heavy rains" at Orte, 40 miles upstream from Rome.

"This wave, when it hits Rome, will mark the crest and if the river does not overflow then the danger is past," one official said.

The 2,000-year-old Ponte Milvio Bridge spanning the Tiber was closed to traffic and authorities were considering shutting down some of the 13 other bridges across the historic river.

Trim, After Losing 40 Pounds

Khrushchev Survives Bout of Pneumonia

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nikita S. Khrushchev has beaten an attack of pneumonia during which he lost 40 pounds but his doctors consider him in "fair" health for a man of 71, informed sources said Friday.

The ousted former Soviet premier has been undergoing a routine medical checkup at a Moscow hospital for the past two weeks and probably will be released within a few days.

Considering his age, the sources said, physicians regard Khrushchev's condition as satisfactory. Friends of the family said the former Kremlin leader's checkup has revealed no serious complaints. Khrushchev spends his time these days hunting, fishing, hiking and enjoying his grandchildren.

He has been given the go-ahead to continue his quiet life in the country. The former premier has a villa 50 miles west of Moscow.
Politically, Khrushchev is an "unperson" and is criticized from time to time indirectly in the Soviet press. He is understood to keep in touch with world events through a transistor radio he carries around with him.
He sees few visitors and his isolation is largely of his own choosing, sources said.

Hour of Crisis

Shastri Warns Of Air Raids: Hard Days Ahead

NEW DELHI (CP)—Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said in a sombre speech Friday night an "hour of serious crisis" is upon India and it may have to suffer damage from Pakistani air raids.

The prime minister spoke in a countrywide radio broadcast at the end of a tense day in which India claimed its forces shot down two Pakistani jet fighters and advanced in ground fighting in Southwest Kashmir.

INDIA BLAMED
But in Rawalpindi, the new capital of Pakistan, that country's foreign minister, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, blamed India for the latest eruption of the fighting in Kashmir.

Bhutto said Friday that if India wants to stage a war against Pakistan, "it will be unleashing a tragedy of the greatest magnitude—a tragedy which will spell devastation."

COMMONWEALTH
Elsewhere, especially in Commonwealth capitals, desperate efforts were being made to avert a war between the two countries.

Prime Minister Pearson offered his immediate services to bring about a ceasefire.
From London, Prime Minister Wilson sent personal messages to both Shastri and President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

PROTEST TO U.S.
India declared Pakistan never would have dared to attack in Kashmir without planes and tanks furnished by the United States. It sent Washington a protest against Pakistan's use of U.S. war material.

Pakistan is a member of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. India has no military alliances.

Shastri said he is calling on his 480,000,000 people "to rise" to join the home guards, increase defence production and preserve communal peace between Hindus and Moslems.

MIKE ADDLES VOTING PICTURE

Opposition critics have branded the offer as proof that Mr. Pearson has in effect "turned chicken" on a fall election.

But the prime minister's executive assistant, Richard O'Hagan told newsmen that the mediation offer and a fall election are not "mutually exclusive" ideas.

Some pundits here interpret the move as a sure sign the election is on. They reason that Mr. Pearson will use his peace proposal as a major campaign gimmick.

They also point out that campaigning from a distance might not hurt Mr. Pearson, who has proved himself weak on the hustings in the last two campaigns.

One thing is certain. The prime minister has heaped confusion on confusion. Canadians face a holiday weekend not knowing where they stand.

They will know Tuesday or Wednesday when the prime minister has promised a firm answer one way or another on the election.

Mr. Pearson's offer of personal mediation in the bloody India-Pakistan dispute is without precedent in Canadian history.

Mr. O'Hagan told newsmen the prime minister is willing to travel right to the trouble spot if asked. "He is willing to do whatever is necessary to get a ceasefire," Mr. O'Hagan said.

"In the middle of an election campaign?" a reporter asked. "What campaign?" Mr. O'Hagan retorted with a smile.

But on the way out of the press briefing Mr. O'Hagan indicated to newsmen that the mediation offer didn't rule out the possibility of the fall election.

His statement gave rise to speculation that Mr. Pearson, who won a Nobel Peace Prize for his peace-keeping solution to the Suez Crisis of 1956, may be bidding to retrieve his slipping international halo to win votes.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker branded the Pearson proposal as "a transparent device to escape the consequences of his ill-considered election threats and rash indulgence in electoral brinkmanship."

"Our attitude toward imperialist wars of aggression has always been clear-cut. First, we are against them, and secondly, we are not afraid of them."

"Taking the entire globe, if North America and Western Europe can be described as 'the cities of the world,' then Asia, Africa and Latin America constitute 'the rural areas of the world.'"

He said socialist countries "should regard it as their international duty to support the people's revolutionary struggles in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

Steel Strike Averted

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson announced Friday night that steel negotiators "have reached essential agreement" on a new contract that would erase the threat of a nationwide strike.

The president, who persuaded industry and union negotiators to move their talks to Washington last Monday and postpone a scheduled strike, did not disclose the basic terms of the settlement but said:

"The settlement is a fair one. It is squarely within the limits set by the national wage-price guidelines which are designed to prevent the inflation which would damage our prosperity. It is also within the guiding spirit of free collective bargaining."

Namu Good Business

By DALE NELSON

SEATTLE (AP)—Namu, the captive killer whale, has proved to be a good business proposition.

Ted and Jim Griffin, operators of the Seattle Marine Aquarium, say the whale has been profitable. "Our entire investment, including operating expenses, has been returned from admissions," adds Jim.

COST $10,000
"Before purchasing the whale, Ted estimated it would take $40,000 out of pocket," Griffin said. "The actual expenses ran considerably higher, but taking into account donations it came to exactly $40,000."

"As soon as we had Namu secured in the towing pen Ted had constructed, I contacted my lawyer and we formed a corporation, Namu, Inc., to license manufacture of Namu items." Trade marks were registered for sweat shirts, toys, hat accessories and other novelties.

U.S. Worried!

By ARCH MACKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—The latest fighting between India and Pakistan points up a hazard created when major powers shower arms on smaller ones with trigger tempers.

India formally protested Friday that Pakistan has turned American tanks and Sabre jet fighters against her—contrary to the declaration made in 1954 by then-President Eisenhower.

The U.S. in the last 10 years has given Pakistan some $1,200,000,000 worth of military aid to be used against any Communist aggression. Britain and Russia have supplied India with assorted military hardware while Pakistan has received more than $5,000,000,000 worth of economic help from the U.S. but little military aid.

Pakistani tanks are superior to the creaking British models in India's arsenal or some Second World War Sherman models purchased from the U.S. Sabre jets are less obsolete too than the British Vampires used initially by India.

But just what the U.S. can do at this point to slap Pakistan's wrist is hard to guess.

In more ways than one, this fresh eruption about an old border sore has put pressure on the U.S.

Pakistan Using Jets And Tanks

What concerns American and other diplomats is the larger-scale operations and the apparent national tensions in each country, compared with the fighting earlier this year over the Rann of Kutch.

Picket Lines Set As Militia Prowls

NATCHEZ, Miss. (UPI)—Civil Rights leaders established picket lines in Negro neighborhoods Friday to enforce an economic "blackout" in this city where armed National Guardsmen patrol the streets to maintain racial peace.

Squads of guardsmen with unsheathed bayonets and helmets drove through the city making reconnaissance maps and noting potential trouble spots and places where snipers could hide.

China Challenges U.S.

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters)—China Friday challenged the United States to send troops — "the more the better" — to fight a war on the Asian mainland and warned it would annihilate them and "even give you receipts."

The challenge, coupled with new attacks on "Khrushchev revisionists" who fear nuclear war, came in a 70,000-word article by Lin Piao, Chinese vice-premier and defence minister.

Lin claimed the United States is "in danger of being swamped" in Viet Nam and said the war there shows that "what the Vietnamese people can do, the people in other parts of the world can do, too."

He said conditions now are more favorable than ever before for waging "people's war" against the U.S. and he promises increasing Chinese aid for such wars as the country grows stronger.

Lin called the United States "the most rabid aggressor in human history and the most ferocious common enemy of the people of the world."

He said "the U.S. imperialists are now clamoring for another trial of strength with the Chinese people, for another large-scale ground war on the Asian mainland."

Lin said American naval and air superiority "cannot intimidate the Chinese people and neither can the atom bomb or brandish at us."

Simon Fraser

Bold, Modern University Opens

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—Simon Fraser, Canada's first "Trimester" university Tuesday opens its Athenian halls of learning to some 2,000 students.

The University comprises an imposing group of grey-white buildings based on ancient Athens' Acropolis and Peru's

Inca ruins. They sit high atop Burnaby mountain and overlook the blue Pacific.

Simon Fraser is an educational trail-blazer, not just physically and technically, but also academically.

The trimester system is considered a major advantage. The year is divided into three semesters of 16 weeks. They are Spring semester, January to April; Summer semester, May to August; and Fall semester, September to December.

Students may enter at the start of any semester and attend for one, two or three semesters each calendar year.

It was expected many students would choose to follow the traditional pattern and attend two semesters from September to April. Each student is free to determine the number of terms he will attend during any year.

Situated 10 miles east of downtown.
